NORTON SLAYER PLEADS

THOUSAND STRUGGLE TO SEE GUNMAN

HUNDREDS FALL IN MEXICO BATTLE

ZACATECAS STORMED BY VILLA

TORREON, June 20.—General Villa's army is drawing in upon Zacatecas preparatory for a general assault which may be made tonight.

Dispatches from the front received at Constitutionalist headquarters today said that General Felipe Angeles, commander of the artillery of the rebel army, had brought all his big guns into action and was bombarding the city.

It is reported that several hundred men have been killed and wounded on both sides in the desultory fighting which has been going on for a week or more around the city.

Dispatches from the front say that General Barron, the Federal commander in Zacatecas, is making a brave defence of the city. General Barron has about 15,000 men and is well supplied with arms, ammunition and provisions. His outposts have fought stubbornly and the rebels found it a difficult task to drive back the outer line of Federals.

The Federals have several batteries of artillery, and before the Constitutionalists began their attack the Federals threw up intrenchments and stretched lines of barbed wire, and spread abbatis lines to protect the vulnerable parts of the city.

Strong defensive works were erected by the rebels on La Bufa Hill and other eminences which command the main approaches to Zacatecas.

Heavy rains have been falling in the district around Zacatecas for more than a week and the trenches are filled with water. The rivers in the district are flooded and troop movements have been handicapped by the washouts of some of the railway lines.

There are nearly 50,000 rebel troops either around Zacatecas or on their way there. If the city is captured, as General Villa says it will be, it will be used as a base for the campaign against Mexico City.

"I have inspected our positions and I am sure we will take the city within three days," said Villa.

The food situation in Northern Mexico is the worst in twenty years. Many rivers and creek beds are now filled with rushing torrents.

General Villa continues to deny that there has been any split between himself and General Carranza, but this notable fact stands out: No mention is made of General Natera in any of the dispatches which Villa is sending back from the front. It was Natera who was sent by Carranza to take Zacatecas, but who failed.

Personal representatives of Villa are preparing to ship back to Juarez from Chihuahua City $500,000 in gold which was seized when Villa's men raided the custom house and Constitutionalist information bureau last night, arresting a number of intimate friends of Carranza.

NEW HAVEN BILL TO BE REPORTED

Members of the Committee on Railroads, going into executive session late this afternoon at the State House, declared that before the day was over they would agree to report a bill calling for the separation of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven.

The bill will carry a "string" to it.

The "string" will be that all shares of Boston & Maine stock to be sold hereafter shall carry the stamped statement that it is sold subject to the right of the Commonwealth to buy it whenever the Commonwealth wants to.

It took the Joint Committee on Rules three minutes this morning to dispose of the earlier suggestion of some of the Railroad Committee folk that the best thing to do with the Boston & Maine question was to hand it over to a recess committee of fifteen legislators, to sit for the balance of the year at $1,000 apiece.

OPPOSES RECESS BOARD.

Governor Walsh, the newspapers and leading members of the Railroad Committee itself having taken a decided stand against the recess plan, the Rules Committee wasted no time with it. "Rules" voted to once to send the entire matter back to "Railroads."

Chairman Frederick J. Macleod of the Public Service Commission spoke out today against the recess scheme and in favor of the so-called string bill.

"I believe," Chairman Macleod said, "that the bill drafted by the minority of the Committee on Railroads, reserving to the Commonwealth the right to take over the Boston & Maine stock in the hands of future holders, is not only sound and just, with reference both to the public and private interests involved, but represents the most practicable means of securing immediate affirmative legislation.

"If this bill should be passed the Legislature will have discharged its full responsibility. I believe that if this legislation is enacted it will be accepted by the New Haven Railroad. In any event the responsibility for the success or failure of present legislation will rest with the New Haven and not with the Commonwealth.

FEDERAL ACTION.

Touching on the suggestion put forward at the State House that the New Haven might not accept a bill with a string on it—a suggestion made mostly by men who favored recess slitting—the news from Washington is interesting.

President Wilson today indicated to callers that if the Massachusetts legislation providing for separation should fail the Department of Justice will have no other course than to sue for dissolution in the Federal courts.

To Name Culebra Cut for Gaillard

WASHINGTON, June 22.—President Wilson today endorsed the proposal to change the name of Culebra Cut in the Panama Canal to Gaillard Cut in honor of the army engineer who recently died of fever contracted on the Isthmus.

Hold Up Man and Steal His Watch and Money in Back Bay

William Krauth, of No. 16 Jewett street, Roxbury, was held up at the point of a revolver early today, at Kenmore street and Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay, by three men, who robbed him of his gold watch and $22.

Krauth, who is a musician at the Boston Opera House, was walking down Commonwealth avenue, intending to take a car at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street. When he reached Kenmore street he was met by the trio. One of them pointed a gun at him and demanded that he throw up his hands. The man with the gun kept him covered while the other two searched his pockets. They then told him that he might go along and kept the gun pointed at him until he had disappeared from their view.

Krauth reported to Lieutenant Watkins at the Back Bay police station.

Waltham Pastor's Wedding Surprise to Parishioners

When Rev. Axel F. Andrea, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran Church at Waltham, ended his sermon yesterday and pronounced the benediction, he mingled with his congregation and surprised them by announcing: "This is my wife."

The "this" referred to an attractive young woman who stood by his side —a stranger to the worshippers. After the clergyman had been congratulated, the story of his romance came out.

Two weeks ago the church sent him to attend a Swedish Lutheran convention, and at Springfield, Ill., he married Miss Paul, a school teacher in that city.

Westinghouse Men Want Roosevelt

PITTSBURGH, June 22.—The Westinghouse officials and the strikers' committeemen are in separate sessions today. The strikers' representatives are shaping up an "alternative plan of arbitration," should the peace conference fail, that will bring Colonel Roosevelt into the strike as mediator.

Held in $5,000 for Attack on Girl

Miss Queenie Adams, eighteen, in the East Boston court today accused Luigi Bruno of throwing a lighted match at her while she was cleaning gloves with benzine, on May 11. The girl has just left the East Boston Hospital and appeared in court with her hands in bandages.

Judge Barnes held Bruno in $5,000.

GOV. WALSH TAKES CHARGE OF FUND FOR THE NORTON FAMILY

Governor David I. Walsh today accepted the invitation of the AMERICAN and agreed to serve as chairman of the Inspector Norton Fund. The Norton fund, therefore, is now official. Governor Walsh will give it his personal attention.

In response to the invitation of the AMERICAN, the Governor wrote the following letter:

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
Executive Chamber.
State House, Boston.

June 22, 1914.

Editor American:

I am honored by the request made by your newspaper to serve as chairman of a committee to collect and hold funds which the people have shown such a commendable disposition to raise for the widow and children of the late Police Inspector Thomas J. Norton. I will undertake the duties at once.

I have requested the following gentlemen to serve with me upon this committee:

Stephen O'Meara, Police Commissioner.
Benjamin B. Joy, National Shawmut Bank.
Rev. John A. Daly, St. Mark's, Dorchester.
Robert Winsor, Jr., Kidder, Peabody & Co.
Paul Fitzpatrick, Brown, Durrell & Co.
Joseph H. O'Neil, Federal Trust Company.
Simon E. Hecht, Hecht, Liebmann & Co.
C. E. Wiggin, Merchants National Bank.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) DAVID I. WALSH.

The AMERICAN is not retiring from the good work, but will continue to do cheerfully everything within its power to the end that the Norton memorial fund may be worthy of the heroic officer who gave his life for the preservation of law and order in this community.

Give—fellow citizens—give! give! give! Give cheerfully!

And address your offerings to Governor David I. Walsh, Chairman, Inspector Norton Fund, State House, Boston, Mass.

Contributors to the fund and the amounts given as received by the AMERICAN and forward to Governor Walsh, are as follows:

HOW "Diamond Chip" Robinson, assassin and sneak thief, had his clothes made with secret pockets to conceal his loot.

SUPT. PIERCE THREATENED WITH DEATH

Superintendent of Police William H. Pierce today received a "black hand" letter threatening him with death unless Lawrence Robinson, the criminal who shot and killed Police Inspector Norton, was freed.

The threat was written on a card enclosed in an envelope and sent through the mails. The postmark was Milwaukee. The handwriting was declared by the police to be that of an intelligent person, probably a close friend or an accomplice of the murderer.

In the four corners of the card were pen and ink sketches of a black hand, a dirk dripping with pen and ink gore, a bomb, and a mystic figure which the police could not decipher. The letter read:

"Superintendent of Police, Boston.—If you indict our pal Robinson and railroad him to the chair, your life won't be worth the price of powder to blow you to ——. We are watching you closely. We know every move you make, so beware."

The police said there was a signature which they took to be that of a foreigner. Superintendent Pierce said: "It doesn't worry me any. I get barrels of such threats. I have ceased to take any notice of them."

"NOT GUILTY," SAYS ROBINSON; GETS 3D DEGREE

"Diamond Chip" Robinson pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering Inspector Thomas J. Norton, when he was arraigned in the Municipal Court before Judge Brackett today. Shaken by a strenuous third degree from the police, Robinson, nevertheless, preserved a calm front in the court-room, and when the warrant had been read, simply answered:

"I'm not guilty."

He was held without bail until June 27.

The murderer is to have no cause to complain of the law's delays. District Attorney Pelletier will tomorrow present his case to the Grand Jury, and it is expected that if indicted he will be put on trial next month.

When Robinson was taken to Police Headquarters today, and while he was being arraigned in court, a crowd of a thousand men and women eddied and fought through Pemberton square and the courthouse corridors for a sight of the murderer. A special detail of police strove and thrust them back, but the crowd broke through again and again. The courthouse corridors were cleared only to fill again.

BIG "GALLERY" OUT TO SEE ROBINSON.

Old police officials said there was never a criminal who drew so large a "gallery" as Robinson. Even Richeson's arraignment barely filled the court room. But when Robinson was brought into court, men and women stood on benches, prisoners in the pen climbed on their chairs, and some men even knelt on the lawyer's table in the bar enclosure to peer at the man who stood stolidly between two court officers, behind the grating.

Robinson had been through a bad hour at police headquarters before being brought to court. Captain Alfred C. Armstrong, Inspector Dennessy and Special Officer Claflin put him through a third degree that lasted from 9:40 till almost 11 o'clock. A stenographer took down every question and answer.

Robinson went into the captain's office with a smile, calm, self-possessed, debonair. He came out in a cold sweat, pale, with bowed head and stumbling feet, showing plainly the ordeal to which he had been subjected.

IS HUSTLED ALONG.

The big auto patrol was brought to headquarters at 9:40. A hundred men and boys raced after it as it swept into the square. Captain Thomas Good was riding outside the van. He was the first to the pavement. The door opened and Special Officer Claflin stepped out.

NORTH READING SLAYER HELD WITHOUT BAIL

James Harris, a special policeman of North Reading, accused of slaying his brother, Charles Harris, in a duel to the death with an axe and a revolver, was arraigned in the Woburn District Court today. Judge Johnson held him without bail for a hearing next Monday.

Harris seemed perfectly calm and self-possessed, nodded smilingly from the grated cage at friends he recognized in the courtroom, and for half an hour apparently walked about the courthouse as freely as any spectator. He was not handcuffed, entering the courthouse behind Officer Thomas Croswell of Reading, who arrested him. Croswell said Harris had made a complete confession of the fratricide.

Harris spent fifteen minutes in the witness room, conversing with his counsel, John O'Donohue of Lowell. When he entered the court-room he was alone. Here again he was looked upon as a mere onlooker as there was nothing to show he was a prisoner charged with homicide. Later at 9.15 when he entered the dock, half a dozen old acquaintances came in and walked over to the cage. Harris saw them coming, and bowed, smiling. He shook hands with each of them.

REFUSES TO PLEAD.

Judge Johnson rapped with his gavel, and Clerk Arthur E. Gage ordered Harris to "Stand up."

The complaint charges Harris with assault, shooting and killing Charles Harris.

Harris instead of pleading answered: "I am represented here by counsel."

Lawyer O'Donohue was called into the room. He went up to the Judge's bench followed by District Attorney William J. Corcoran, representing Middlesex County. Judge Johnson conferred with the two for a minute and then continued the case until June 29, holding the defendant without bail.

The prisoner was neatly dressed in a gray suit, with vest, white shirt, low collar and string tie. He did not show the least sign of nervousness and his whole appearance was that of a man who was about to transact some ordinary business deal. According to the police the killing was the outcome of a quarrel at the old Harris farmhouse in North Reading yesterday noon. The two brothers had lived a strange life for fifteen years. Charles was fifty-six, James is fifty-eight. For nearly a generation they have been bitter enemies, and for years had not spoken to one another as a result of their family feud, the authorities declared.

Yesterday, so the police stated, they argued over the ownership of a pile of wood in the yard, which Charles was chopping with an axe. It is claimed James told his brother to "leave the wood alone."

Charles refused, and James went inside and secured a revolver, it is alleged. According to Croswell, James claimed he was hit over the back with the axe. Then the two men clinched and the fatal shots were fired which sent Charles prostrate.

SHOTS AROUSED NEIGHBOR.

The shots aroused Mrs. Lucy McIntire, a next door neighbor. She was drawing water from a well at the time. She saw Charles' body prone where the man had fallen. She ran to his side and lifted his head. His eyes opened and he murmured: "Lucy," Mrs. McIntire's name.

Later it was said that years ago Charles wanted Mrs. McIntire to marry him, but another won her hand. It was the only romance the dead man ever had.

Meanwhile James had driven over toward the North Reading police station to give himself up. He was met on the road by Croswell, who placed him under arrest. Croswell said the prisoner had told him during the trip that he shot his brother "in self-defence."

Bryan Heard on Nicaraguan Treaty

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Secretary of State Bryan and Judge Charles Douglas again appeared before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations today relative to the Colombian and Nicaraguan treaties. Payment of $2,000,000 to Nicaragua and the assumption of a virtual protectorate over that republic are the two vital points of the treaty upon which all the criticism centers and it is accepted that these will have to be modified materially before the committee will report the agreement to the Senate.

Fremont Celebrates 150th Anniversary

FREMONT, N. H., June 22.—The 150th anniversary of the settlement of the town of Fremont was observed today with an all-day celebration. Addresses by Governor Samuel D. Felker and Rev. Girl Scout Gets Prize for Saving Man

WASHINGTON, June 22.—For heroic conduct in saving the life of a man who had been overcome by gas while digging a well, Miss Doris Lippman, a girl scout of Savannah, Ga., has been awarded a prize of $50 by the National Red Cross Society, it was announced today. It was the first award made to the girl scouts by the society.

LAWYER FOLSOM DIED A MARTYR FOR LOVE OF HIS INSANE WIFE

Mrs. Mary H. Folsom, who shot and killed her husband, Chairman of Somerville School Committee, during fit of insanity.

The most pathetic note in the killing of Henry H. Folsom, the Boston lawyer and chairman of the Somerville School Committee, by his demented wife at Exeter, N. H., Saturday, is that it was through Folsom's love for his wife and against the advice of friends that he had secured her release from the McLean Asylum at Waverly.

The delusions and tragic tendencies which Mrs. Folsom had shown at the time of her incarceration had disappeared, to a measure, but the signs of dementia in a latent form were apparent to the practiced eyes of the medical attendants, and they entered a protest against Mrs. Folsom's removal.

But her husband was lonely and persistent. They were childless, his Summer home, a few miles outside of Exeter, was desolate without her, and he felt the sane man knew that in the quiet and soothing surroundings of that place she would recover her complete reason.

WARNED BY NURSE.

Dr. Frank E. Bateman, whose wife was a classmate of Mrs. Mary H. Folsom and who lives at No. 163 Highland avenue, Somerville, only a few blocks from the Folsom residence at No. 103 Central street, said:

"Mr. Folsom was obliged to send his wife away to Westerly in 1911, her mind had become so deranged with hallucinations. She remained there about a year. Mrs. Folsom was insanely jealous of her husband, who was one of the best men in the world, and respected by everybody.

"While at Waverly, Mrs. Folsom told the nurses that she wished she had poisoned Mr. Folsom before he had time to send her away.

"But, as time went on, she seemed to regain her accustomed poise and Mr. Folsom wanted to take her to his home again. The nurse in charge of Mrs. Folsom told him that he was 'taking his life in his hands' to live with Mrs. Folsom after her expressed determination to get rid of him. 'I'd hate to be in your shoes,' she told Mr. Folsom.

"However, Mr. Folsom said that he'd 'risk it,' and that he guessed he'd be able to 'manage her all right.'"

So it was that, when she met him at the railway station at Exeter Centre, all smiles and loving cheerfulness, he was certain that her restoration was accomplished; that the doctors were wrong and he was right.

Then came the tragic drive, the pistol shot at the back of the head and the four other shots into the body of the husband as he lay in the road, a martyr to his wife love.

Mrs. Folsom, graduate of Smith's College and former schoolmate of her dead husband at Dover, is now confined in the Rockingham County Jail at Portsmouth. She talked freely of the tragedy.

"I don't deserve the kind of treatment you are giving me here," was her greeting to the sheriff. "I want to be punished for this crime. I do not know why I killed him," she added wearily. "I could not have been in my right mind. I had no reason for doing so."

Then she said, without any attempt at palliation, however, that if she had had children she would have had something to think of and might not have committed the act. Then she declared she loved her husband and referred to her sixteen years of "happy" married life.

There is a strong probability that Mrs. Folsom will never be tried.

This phase of the situation came out today, when County Solicitor Guptill, before leaving for New York, gave orders that the prisoner be kept under close observation to determine her mental condition.

If he finds, on his return, that reports warrant the step, Mr. Guptill will petition the Superior Court for her commitment to an asylum without the formality of a trial.

FIREMEN RISK LIVES AT BLAZE IN ASHMONT

District Chief Maurice Heffernan and members of Engine Company No. 46 today saved four hundred gallons of oil from exploding at a fire in the basement of the store of Albert Fellowa at Nos. 1868 and 1870 Dorchester avenue, Ashmont.

The fire started in a pile of rubbish in the basement where the oil was stored, and when Fred Tyler, an employe, and Albert Fellows, manager, saw the danger of the oil catching fire they hurried to the quarters of Engine Company 46, nearby, and told District Chief Heffernan.

The firemen braved clouds of smoke which poured from the cellar, and got to the oil tank and fought back the flames.

While the firemen were at work Miss Lena B. Eberly, the bookkeeper, gathered up all the account books and hurried from the store. Manager Fellows locked the safe and then assisted the firemen. The damage was $300.

Four Overcome in Big Worcester Fire

WORCESTER, June 22.—Four firemen were overcome by smoke and rescued from death by their comrades during a fire, early today, which caused a damage of $150,000 in the Riker-Jaynes Building at Main and Front streets.

The blaze, which started in the basement of the store of E. H. Ames & Company, clothing dealers, had gained considerable headway before it was discovered by Patrolman Hugh McCann. It had worked its way up through the rear of the five-story building.

Yachtsmen Battle for Life in Storm

CHICAGO, June 22.—After seven hours' struggle in the most terrific storm of recent years on Lake Michigan, three yachts with twelve men on board arrived at the Jackson Park Yacht Club today after having been missing all night. The boats were among thirty yachts which were returning from Michigan City after Saturday's annual race for the Columbia Yacht Club cup, when caught in the storm.

Steamer City of Brockton Ashore

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., June 22.—The steamer City of Brockton of the New England Steamship Company, on her first trip from this port, bound for New York, went aground shortly after midnight just off the Bug Light at the entrance of this harbor, and although tugs have been working hard all night, she has not been moved from her position on the flats.

The City of Brockton is 2,770 tons burden, hails from Fall River, Mass., and until recently ran from that port to New York. She is heavily laden with freight, but carries no passengers.

President Favors Sale of Warships to Greek Government

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The fight over the sale of American battleships to Greece was taken today directly to President Wilson. The Greek charge d'affaires, Alexander Vaurous, laid his case before the President, and later the Turkish ambassador called at the White House to make a strong protest against the sale of the ships.

The President does not think that the sale of the battleships is a move contrary to the spirit of the peace propaganda of this country. He authorized the Secretary of the Navy to suggest to Congress that he is in favor of the sale.

Bayard Dominick Dies in New York

NEW YORK, June 22.—Bayard Dominick, formerly head of Dominick & Dominick, No. 115 Broadway, is dead. Mr. Dominick was sixty-five years of age and was vice-president and director of the Columbian National Life Insurance Company of Boston and a director of the American Investment Securities Company of Boston and Stars Consolidated Mining Company of Leadville, Col.

Boston Officials Win Phosphate Case

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Joseph Hull of Savannah, Ga., and the Savannah Trust Company today lost in the United States Supreme Court in litigation with Arthur E. Burr and other Bostonians, trustees of the Pratt Pebble Phosphate Company at Port Tampa, Fla. Hull alleged fraud and asked damages from the company, which was financed in Boston.

MELROSE BOYS BATTLE FOR SCHOOL FLAG

Sprained ankles, bruised noses, black eyes and scratched faces were the result of a free-for-all fight between juniors and seniors of the Melrose High School in the school yard today when the seniors were trying to remove a large junior flag from the top of a telephone pole in front of the school building.

Kenneth Maclachlan was taken home in an automobile with a sprained ankle, and Stanley Leonard, the senior class historian, will have to appear before an audience at the graduation exercises tomorrow with a badly lacerated face. Scores of pupils received bloody noses or black eyes. The juniors succeeded in keeping their flag flying from the pole. School authorities are investigating.

Empress of Ireland Victims Buried

QUEBEC, June 22.—The bodies of forty-seven unidentified victims of the Empress of Ireland disaster were buried here today from Protestant and Roman Catholic churches, all efforts to learn their identity having failed.

SILK SKIRT IN RIVER MYSTERY IS IDENTIFIED

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 22.—The most important step yet taken toward a solution of the Mohawk River mystery came today when Mrs. William Faust went to the morgue and identified the pink silk skirt in which a murdered girl's limbless torso was found in the bottom of the river as a garment similar to that owned by her daughter.

The daughter, Teresa Faust, has been missing from her home for some time, having been last seen with Miss Jessie Bellare and two strange men in Dolly Park.

Mrs. Faust says she was sure the skirt found with the girl's trunk was the one worn by her daughter when she left home.

The police have redoubled their efforts to find the head of the murder victim. Although indications point strongly to the victim being Miss Faust, the police declare they will not be positive as to the identity of the victim until the head is found.

Another Death from Milford Holocaust

MILFORD, June 22.—The death of Vahan Arsenian, thirty-five, at the local hospital, brings the number of fatalities resulting from the lodging house fire last Tuesday up to eight. Fourteen other men burned in the fire, three of whom are not expected to live, are still in the hospital.

GIRL STRUCK BY BROOM GROWS DESPONDENT

But little improvement is reported in the condition of Miss Rose Morrissey, the domestic who was mysteriously struck and seriously injured by a broom while on West Beach, at the edge of the estate of Neal Rantoul, where she was employed, at Beverly Farms.

The young woman is at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. Her right eye has been removed and it is said there is small hope of restoring the sight of the left eye. Miss Morrissey has grown despondent and is reported to prefer death to blindness for life. The specialists and nurses attending her are doing their best to raise her spirits but the young woman fails to rally.

The Beverly police are still working on the case and, although several clews have been run down, no trace of Miss Morrissey's assailant is said to have been found. The young man who was with Miss Morrissey on the night of the accident told the police he thought the broom was thrown by somebody in a joke.

"Rich Love Autos More Than Bible"

NEW YORK, June 22.—The Rev. Dr. James L. Lordon of Winnipeg, better known as "Ralph Connor," the novelist, preaching yesterday, said:

The average rich Christian thinks more of his automobile than he does of the Bible; the average poor Christian thinks more of the number of cards in a deck than he does of the number of books in the Bible.

The pulpit may be suffering from a cold wave of materialization, but humanity is indulging in one of the greatest joy rides ever known.

Mediator to Be Maine.

GLASGOW, June 22.—The hospital ship which is now being fitted out and which was to have been known under the name of Mediator will be christened Maine.

CITY BATH HELP PLAN TO STRIKE FOR BETTER PAY

Fifty employes of the city Bath Department meet in secret today to discuss plans for their proposed strike for higher wages. They will probably lay their troubles before Mayor Curley and the officials of the Park and Recreation Department before taking final action.

The employes claim that they receive only six days' wages for seven days of work. They say that the department which employs them was the hardest hit by the sweeping salary reductions made by Mayor Curley in the city pay rolls, and that they should receive overtime pay for work on the seventh day.

Rebels Threaten Haytien.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, June 22.—Partisans of Senator Davilmar Theodore continue to resist the constituted authorities and are again threatening Cape Haytien.

GIRL VANISHES WHILE MOTHER IS AT CHURCH

For the second time within four months, Etta V. Arnold, seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Arnold, is missing from her home, No. 6 Charlton street, Everett.

Friday night she and her mother were to attend a rehearsal of the choir of the Congregational Church. She said she was ill and would stay at home with her father. When her mother had gone, she told her father she was going to gather kindlings in the yard. Mr. Arnold saw his daughter a few minutes later on Broadway, but she fled at his approach.

She wore a gray suit and a hat of brown straw, Panama style, trimmed with black velvet, although she had on a white shirtwaist and black skirt when she left the house.

Here is a description of the girl:

Name—Etta V. Arnold.
Age—Seventeen.
Height—Five feet three inches.
Hair—Dark brown, plentiful, "done up" in back.
Eyes—Black, heavy brows.
Weight—139 pounds.

Pigs Best Pets, Says Physician

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—"If a pet you must have, get a pig. The pig may not be so delicate and sentimental an animal as the cat and dog, and he has a disagreeable squeal besides, but he is not a disease carrier."

Dr. D. T. Quigley of North Platte, Neb., said this at the Devereux Methodist Episcopal Church in a lecture on the prevention of infectious and contagious diseases.

Danish Writer Is Visiting Boston

The Baroness DeHegerman of Copenhagen, well-known writer and wife of the Danish ambassador, is in Boston, and will spend several days studying the social conditions of this city. She is visiting many of the American cities in search of material for a new series of articles.

BRITISH EARL TO WED MISS HAVEMEYER

LONDON, June 22.—Yet another American woman is to add beauty, grace and, incidentally, wealth to the British Empire.

The betrothal is announced of Miss Edith Havemeyer, daughter of the late Henry Havemeyer, of New York, to the Earl of Euston, eldest surviving son and heir of the Duke of Grafton. The Duke lacks but seven years of a century of life full of honors. He entered his ninety-fourth year today, so, in the natural course of events, the dukedom must pass to the Earl of Euston soon.

Miss Edith Havemeyer is a granddaughter of William Frederick Havemeyer, one of the founders of the house whose vast fortune has been made in sugar. She is about thirty-one and has passed most of her life abroad. Educated in an English school at Wimbledon, she lived for some years with her sister, Mrs. Adair Campbell, in Scotland. There are older than Miss Havemeyer.

Flame Veil at Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, June 22.—The flame veil is one of the latest fashion novelties on the boardwalk. It has a black border around the bottom, with orange colored darts shooting upward for about half the width in imitation of flames. Above the darts and about on a level with the eyes are hundreds of little red and and yellow dots imitating sparks.

Miss Havemeyer announced her intention "to be independent"—as she well can be—and after taking a house in London engaged a chaperon and lived as a bachelor girl. She has a residence now on Draycott avenue, Chelsea.

The Earl of Euston is sixty-four years old. His first wife was Miss Margaret Rose Garrington Smith, of Sussex. She died in March, 1913. The Earl was formerly a lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards. He has three children—his heir, Viscount Ipswich, and two daughters, both of whom

WOUNDS GIRL WHO WOULD NOT BE HIS BRIDE

GARDNER, June 22.—Anthony Jo, eighteen, shot Wanda Rakoski, nineteen, in her bedroom at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rakoski, No. 375 Pleasant street, and then fired two bullets into his head. Both are at the Henry Heywood Hospital. Jost is reported in a critical condition, but the young woman may recover.

Jost had been very attentive to Miss Rakoski, although neither she nor her parents favored his attentions. It is thought Jost had been pleading with the girl to marry him and that she had refused to do so.

Deport Filibuster.

MOBILE, Ala., June 22.—Richard A. Denton, an Englishman connected with various Mexican filibustering enterprises, has been deported to England.

ROBINSON IS ARRAIGNED FOR KILLING OF POLICE INSPECTOR

HEAVY GUARD OVER DESPERATE BANDIT

Robinson followed, handcuffed to Claflin, and then Inspector Dennessy, manacled to Robinson's other hand.

By this time the crowd was so large and pressed so hard about the wagon that the two regular headquarters police were having difficulty keeping open the way to the steps.

Robinson halted, seemed about to turn to speak to some one in the crowd, but a twitch at the cuffs brought him along. He went up the steps between the two police and was taken direct to Captain Armstrong's office.

As he passed through the corridor about twenty inspectors and patrolmen took a look at the man who had killed "Tom" Norton. Comments were: "He don't look bad." "He don't look like a gunman." "He's a pleasant looking fellow."

More observing ones said:

"Thinbet he's strong as an ox," or "Quick as a rat."

In Captain Armstrong's office he was questioned at length. His name, his age, his home, his birthplace, his business, his life elsewhere, his affairs in Boston, why he killed Norton, who his associates have been, his career, his crimes—all these were matters for inquiry.

When at the end of an hour he emerged, he was perspiring, pale and stumbling.

From Captain Armstrong's office he was taken to the Rogues' Gallery. All were excluded save the men in direct charge of him. He was still handcuffed to Claflin and Dennessy till it came time to photograph him, when the cuff on Claflin's side was removed. But he was linked to Dennessy throughout the work of measuring and photographing him.

BERTILLON MEASUREMENTS.

Gus Gustafson, Bertillon expert, took the measurements. Robinson went through it in silence. It was an old experience to him.

During this time, the main door from the Rogues' Gallery to the inspectors' quarters was locked, and Inspector Michael Burke was on guard outside.

When the Rogues' Gallery work was over he was again handcuffed to Claflin, and whisked upstairs and into the building where the superintendent of police has his office. Thence by the inside passageway he was taken to the Tombs.

There, in a locked cell, the manacles on his wrists were loosened. Claflin and Dennessy relinquished their charge, and he was manacled between Court Officers Twombly and McCarry.

Judge Brackett was on the Municipal Court bench. The courtroom was packed when the court officers, with Robinson between them, appeared in the enclosed pen where the prisoners are kept.

There was the usual assortment of drunks and petty thieves waiting to be heard. These lesser miscreants looked curiously at Robinson, and crowded to the chairs on each side of him, standing up one behind another to watch.

Robinson stood, between the two officers, behind the breast-high wooden fence, with his wife's letter at top. Clerk Lord read the warrant which was secured from Judge Fay Saturday morning and which charges him and Joseph Duddy with the murder of Norton.

When Clerk Lord had finished he asked, "Are you guilty or not guilty?"

Robinson answered:

"I'm not guilty."

He spoke in a low, clear voice. It was audible for about ten feet—to the judge's bench and to the nearer spectators. He was ruddy by now, more at ease than when he left Police Headquarters, and spoke without hesitation.

CASE GOES OVER TO JUNE 27.

Captain Armstrong then took the witness stand and said:

"Your Honor, the other man in this case (Duddy) was arraigned Saturday morning and held till June 27. The Grand Jury is coming in Tuesday. They will take up the case. I ask that this man be also held till June 27."

Judge Brackett nodded assent, and Clerk Lord said, "You are remanded without bail, to the Charles street jail, and your case is continued till next Saturday.. June 27."

Robinson was at once taken back into the Tombs, where he was later transferred to the Charles street jail.

All this time the crowd waited outside, hoping for a glimpse of him. At 10 o'clock there were a thousand men and women in Pemberton square. Superintendent Pierce telephoned to Station 2 and a detail of men under Sergeant McGlone came and cleared the square absolutely. The crowds, however, slipped into the court corridors and lined the steps. After a time the corridors were cleared; but again the crowds packed in like water through a filter. There was no chance for them to see Robinson, for he was taken through the inside corridors but they waited just the same.

Those who saw Robinson noticed how evidently careful he was to raise a mustache. The three-day stubble of beard which he had acquired since his arrest was shaved off in the City Hospital before he was taken to court, but he asked that his upper lip be untouched; and in court he had a respectable shadow of a mustache there.

Robinson's money and jewels, $280, seven unset diamonds, a watch, a diamond ring, tie-pin and cuff links, are in the police possession, as is the automatic with which he shot Norton.

ROBINSON LEAVES HOSPITAL HATLESS

Robinson left the hospital at 8:28. He was hatless, but wore the blue shirt, with pencil stripe, in which he was clad when he was arrested.

He looked very well and perfectly calm and contented. The only mark of his injuries was a bandage about his neck.

BANDIT HAS HIS JOKE.

He was handcuffed to two plain clothes men. Special Officer James R. Claflin and Inspector Joseph Dennessy, in the police auto van which took him to headquarters were Captain Thomas F. Good, Inspector John McCarthy and four other patrolmen. Three of the patrolmen left the van on the way to Pemberton square, so that eight men were Robinson's first guard and five later.

One of the hospital attendants, Morris Levy, told how Robinson cheered up this morning and was ready to talk. He joked about his condition, and asked that the photograph of himself in bed, taken exclusively for the AMERICAN Saturday. It was shown him.

"Do I look like that?" he laughed. The photograph showed Robinson supported by an orderly, his eyes closed, his chin covered with stubble, pale and wan.

"No, you look better than that," Levy assured him.

"I thought so," said Robinson. He seemed pleased and happy. He took the paper and glanced over the Sunday AMERICAN'S story of his life as a gay Lothario in Boston. When he laid it down, the orderly asked: "How did that hit the facts?"

"Oh, it's all perfectly true," said Robinson cheerfully, "I could give them a few points they missed, though."

"How are you feeling?" Levy asked later.

"I feel bully," he replied.

SILENT ON CAFE BATTLE.

Robinson's legs were manacled during the night with cotton bedding under the steel to make it less uncomfortable for him. He eats only liquids, as his throat is sore from the bullet wound, and he cannot swallow hard substances.

"How seriously am I injured?" was one of his first questions today.

"Just scratched," Levy assured him. "They're only flesh wounds."

"Gee," Robinson laughed. "I thought I was hurt more than that. Luck's I got off so easily."

After a minute he asked: "How long am I to be here?"

"They're going to take you away this morning," was the answer. Robinson seemed surprised.

He refused to discuss the clash in the Boylston Cafe when he shot Inspector Norton. There was a rumor about the hospital that he had said: "I wish I'd got two or three more while I was about it. It's all off with me, anyway." But those who had been in closest touch with the man denied he said this.

When the police van with Robinson aboard arrived at headquarters he stepped briskly out, smiled at the photographers who were waiting for him and moved quickly into Chief Inspector McGarr's office. There he was put through a long questioning.

As the bullet which killed Inspector Norton has not been found, there was a report that Robinson might contend the killing was the result of a shot fired by the police.

It was authoritatively stated, however, that the bullet had passed entirely through Norton's body, probably lodging in the wall of the cafe.

Robinson's weapon was of .32 calibre, the police revolvers of .38. The prisoner's automatic had the greater piercing power. Those facts would weaken or destroy such a defence.

BEAU BRUMMEL CAREER.

The police investigation into Robinson's Beau Brummel career in Boston was not completed today. Here are facts, however, already discovered concerning the prisoner:

His feet were regularly pedicured and his fingernails and toenails powdered and polished.

Years of practice had been spent to draw a revolver in a flash and fire it on the draw.

An hour each day was devoted to gymnasium exercises, that he might be physically perfect in case of a battle.

Worked with indefatigable enthusiasm to become proficient in the Manixe in order to mingle with the exclusive and rob them of their jewels.

Was a trained vocalist and an expert pianist, his long, slender fingers trained to pocket pilfering making him especially accomplished.

Had a suit of clothes for every day of the week, and in each were constructed secret chamois pockets in which he carried jewelry and $100 banknotes.

Never used drugs, as do most "gentleman criminals" and drank only rare vintage wines in moderation, while giving his frequent lavish entertainments.

Talked fluently of high art and advanced literature, including the "New Thought" tenets.

FISH DEALER ROBBED.

Robinson and his young pal, Joseph Duddy, are suspected by the Boston police of being the two fake horse racing pool operators who relieved a Boston fish merchant of $1,000 at the Adams House, Thursday afternoon.

The suspicion the police have against Robinson and Duddy is understood to be very strong. The description of the "operators" who trimmed the business man answers closely in many points the description of Robinson and Duddy.

Importance is attached by the police to the phase of the case, as they believe it will clear up much mystery as to where the two men got the money they recklessly spent.

The investigation is expected to fasten responsibility for the fake pool deal on these two.

FIRST DETAILS OF BANDIT'S APPAREL

The first complete and detailed description of Lawrence Robinson's apparel was given the AMERICAN today by Dr. James Manning, assistant superintendent at the hospital. He said:

"Robinson without doubt was the most immaculate man ever brought into this hospital. He was absolutely clean in every detail. Even his toes were carefully manicured.

"He wore a suit bought in Boston, of fine blue serge with a pencil stripe. It was in excellent condition, well-pressed. His shirt was of white silk with a fine blue stripe. He wore a red silk knit tie, fastened with a great gold horseshoe pin, studded with diamond chips.

"His cuff links were lions' heads, with a diamond in the mouth of each lion. In his pockets were a pair of gray silk lisle gloves. I suppose he wore silk instead of kid to give his hands greater freedom for picking pockets or for whatever he cared to do.

"His underwear was fresh and new. His socks were of gray silk.

"Behind the watch pocket of his trousers, into the belt band, was sewed a specially made secret pocket. In this pocket we found $300 in currency, in $50, $20 and $10 bills. Besides this money there were seven of the finest diamonds I ever saw, every one of the first water, and not one weighing less than a carat, I am sure. Some weighed as much as two carats.

"On his finger was a heavy gold ring, Tiffany setting, with a perfect two-carat diamond.

"His pockets were practically empty. There was no pocketbook, no letters or papers or pictures—nothing to identify him in any way.

"He carried a thin Illinois watch with a fine chain, but without engraving and with no picture in it.

"His pumps were patent leather, of a $7 brand. The only thing in his pockets besides the money, gems and watch were two cigarette flaps."

Woman Gave Clew to Robinson and His Pal Duddy

According to Pittsburgh dispatches, it was a woman there who put the detectives on the trail of Joseph Duddy and "Diamond Chip" Robinson.

The woman, Marie Rogers, had been deserted by Duddy. It happened that she came to Police Headquarters to complain against him on a day when Detective McGinnis of Grand Rapids, Mich., was consulting Detective Captain Johnston of Pittsburgh about the case.

The Grand Rapids man had described the murderers wanted for the jewelry robbery and triple murder there. One description was so familiar to Detective Johnston that he said:

"That's 'Chip' Robinson to a dot. I arrested him in Dayton, O., during the Wilbur Wright celebration in 1908, but he was only a circus grafter and pickpocket. He'd hardly kill anybody."

Then Detective Johnston got out the Rogues' Gallery pictures of Robinson, and the two men had agreed he was the man wanted in Grand Rapids, when Miss Marie Rogers appeared.

She complained that Joseph Duddy had deserted her. She happened to notice the picture of Robinson on the table, and said:

"Why, there's a man who was with Duddy all the time. He came from Grand Rapids."

It was thus the detectives were put on the trail of the two men.

PENSION TO WIDOW BY CITY AND STATE

Steps were taken today in the Legislature by the Boston City Council to secure for Mrs. Thomas J. Norton, widow of the police inspector killed in the Boylston street gun battle, pensions amounting to $1,500 a year.

Representative Lomasney today filed with the clerk of the House a petition for a bill to authorize the city of Boston to pay $100 a month to Mrs. Norton so long as she lives. The bill would take effect upon acceptance by the City Council.

Councillor Thomas J. Kenney at today's session of the City Council introduced an order to grant an annuity of $300 to Mrs. Norton. The order was:

Ordered: That, under the provisions of Chapter 178 of the acts of 1887, an annuity of $300 be allowed and paid to Annie L. Norton, widow of Thomas J. Norton, a member of the police department who died from injuries received while in the discharge of his duty; said annuity to continue so long as she remains unmarried and to be charged to the appropriation for police department pensions.

'LIFT ME UP TO SEE PAPA,' CRIES LITTLE SON AT NORTON HOME

From all over Greater Boston today came messages of deep sympathy from friends and relatives of Mrs. Thomas J. Norton, widow of the police inspector who was slain Friday. Many other messages came from admirers of the brave detective. Numerous floral tributes were taken to the Norton home at No. 49 Martha street, Dorchester, one particularly beautiful one being from the Ancient Order of United Workmen. Others were sent by members of the police department.

A pathetic incident in the sorrow-stricken home came to light today. When several relatives called, five-year-old Robert, son of the slain inspector, said to them:

"Lift me up so I can see papa."

Several police inspectors who stood near the casket in the home raised little "Bobbie," who stretched out his hand and touched his father's face.

"Papa's face is cold," said the little fellow, who will not realize for several years probably what has happened.

It was told of the little boy that last night he wandered out of the house to the New Haven station to meet his "papa." He waited until a train came in, and when he failed to see his father, he ran home again.

'NORTON WAS BRAVE BUT NOT FOOLHARDY,' SAYS HIS PARTNER

Inspector George Patterson, who was "Tom" Norton's police partner and his closest friend, today for the first time gave his intimate story of the martyred officer.

"He was brave, but not foolhardy. He passed through the acid test so many times that it seems hard to believe that there are any who do not know what sterling qualities he had.

"He was under fire on June 10, 1902, when he raided the house at No. 86 Myrtle street, West End. Charles A. Foley pulled a loaded revolver as Norton was placing him under arrest, but on this occasion Norton was too quick. He could have shot Foley and in my mind would have been fully justified, but he managed to place him under arrest without it, in the face of a loaded revolver. He had a big heart, Tom Norton did.

"He was always cautious and always thorough. He showed plenty of care against the man who killed him. The man was more desperate than the situation warranted, that's all, and the automatic revolver he carried made him quicker on the draw and on the trigger than would have been the case with an ordinary revolver.

"March, 1906, saw Norton in the capture of John R. McDermott, who was a member of the Hayden-Dart gang of yeggs in which one of the gang was killed in a running fight with the police. Norton did not figure in the killing of the yegg, but captured McDermott without firing a shot.

"In May, 1911, he was the central figure in the rounding up of the national gang of horse thieves, and on July 20, 1911, the missing diamond necklace stolen from Helen Payne Whitney, and valued at $2,000, was recovered through his arrest of Israel Davis.

BRIDGEWATER EXPOSE ROUSES ENTIRE STATE

Plymouth County and the whole State flamed today with indignation as a result of the Sunday AMERICAN'S publication of charges of the most appalling brutalities in the Bridgewater State Hospital for the Insane.

The Plymouth County Grand Jury is investigating the charges, and its report is expected at any time. The brutalities cited range from something very like murder to cases of simple assault, or of ingenious torture of the helpless.

Heber James McLean, a former attendant, makes the accusations, and though the officials of the Bridgewater institution laugh at the accusations, and though, according to McLean, District Attorney Albert M. Barker presented them to the Grand Judy only very unwillingly, the publication of the facts in the AMERICAN has aboused intense public indignation.

WHAT MCLEAN CHARGES.

McLean charges:

That patients (Patrick O'Brien and George Nagle) were stripped, thrust into a room without clothing or wrraps, and with steam turned down, and allowed to suffer from the cold. (O'Brien died).

That Jeremiah Washington was choked with a twisted sheet, and immersed in a bathtub where he died.

That patients were beaten daily.

That tuberculous patients were given icy baths.

That almost inconceivable brutalities are matters of daily routine.

McLean has made depositions to the truth of his charges. In one of these depositions, he says:

"Maurice Ahearn . . . . after his bath would try to put his shirt on without waiting to be dried. For this an attendant beat him with a push broom handle . . . until Ahearn was unable to lift his arms. I . . . found his arms and hands covered with great welts and much discolored."

Other extracts from his typewritten depositions are given below:

"Jeremiah Washington . . . was carried from his room to the bath by putting a twisted sheet about his neck and another about his ankles. After twisting the shee and thus choking him, he was carried to the bath, suspended by neck and ankles. . . . He died in the tub."

GAMBLED ON LIVES.

"I know that attendants gambled on the lives of patients, and that a railroad station agent held the stakes for the bets placed on the deaths of patients at given hours, and that these patients died."

ATTENDANTS D SM SSED.

"On the eighth day of May, 1903, at the hour of 1 o'clock, I went on duty at the State Farm for the first time. And at 4 o'clock of the same day I saw my first case of abuse. Attendants ——— and another (name unknown) made an assault upon a patient (name unknown), and as they beat him he kept crying out"—for one of the doctors.

"The next day, Attendant ——— (throughout his depositions McLean gives names of attendants frequently, but they are omitted here), went about among the patients . . . things . . . He was quite a big man and . . . when he landed harder than usual and the patient winced and moaned from the pain, he would say, 'I will knock a lung out of you.'"

He cites two cases of brutality where the attendant was discharged after an investigation.

"Finally he (an attendant, named) said: 'I will show you how to bathe that patient.' He then pulled the plug of the bath tub, allowing the water to run out, filled it with cold water, it being Winter, with ice on the river whence the water was drawn, and forced the patient into it. The patient made much noise on account of the coldness of the water. In answer to this he (the attendant) poured water on top of his head and down his spine, dashed it into his face and open mouth, stopping his noise by choking him.

CUT PATIENT'S HEAD.

"Then he grabbed him by the feet and almost stood him on his head in the tub; turned him completely over, bringing his head up against one of the faucets with great force, cutting quite a gash in his head. He then had another patient take a scrubbing brush and with it was stone, while he stood calmly chewing tobacco and spitting the juice into the wound on Stone's head."

"A mode of punishment was the use of a wet towel for the purpose of choking the patients. I have seen patients choked into unconsciousness from one to three times. I have seen them turn black in the face, seen the heaving chest vainly trying to take in air, seen the patient sink into the darkness of unconsciousness, seen them come to with a fright and a shudder, and then choked into unconsciousness again."

HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

MISS ROSALIE M. STODDARD IS ENGAGED

CUTTING-AMORY WEDDING AT BEVERLY TODAY WILL BE QUIET AFFAIR

Miss Rosalie M. Stoddard, whose engagement to Dr. Alfred E. Johnson, of Dedham, is announced.

There is wide interest in the engagement recently announced of Miss Rosalie M. Stoddard and Dr. Alfred E. Johnson, both of Dedham. The prospective bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Granville M. Stoddard and the announcement was made at their home a short time ago when they were celebrating the twenty-sixth anniversary of their wedding.

Miss Stoddard is well-known in Dedham and an active member of the Congregational Church, having taken part in a number of amateur shows. Dr. Johnson is a well-known physician and surgeon of Dedham, Boston and New York.

* * *

The most important event of today is the wedding in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Beverly, of pretty Mary Josephine Amory and Fulton Cutting of New York.

The wedding is to be as simple and quiet as possible, complying with the wishes of the winsome bride who ever since her debut has done things in this tasteful and highly commendable manner.

Miss Amory will have neither maid of honor nor bridesmaids and will be given in marriage by her father, Francis I. Amory. The ceremony takes place at 4 o'clock and is followed by a reception at the home of the bride's father. After an extended wedding tour the young couple will return to the North Shore for the Summer.

Mrs. Christopher C. Chadwick of Boston is among the most recent arrivals at the Red Lion Inn in Stockbridge.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gibson, who came on from Washington to New York for the polo games, have just arrived at Beverly Farms, where they will spend the rest of the season.

* * *

August 5 has been set as the date of the marriage of Miss Alice A. Appleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Appleton of New York, and Clarence Hay, a son of the late John Hay, whose engagement was recently announced. The wedding will take place at Ipswich, Mass.

* * *

The Business Women's Club will be the guests of Gardner M. Lane Saturday afternoon, June 27, at Manchester-by-the-Sea. Mrs. Lane Howe is the leader of the party which will leave the North Station at 2:20 p. m. Afternoon tea is to be served in the new Summer house in the gardens. Later they will go to Singing Beach for a moonlight supper.

* * *

A large number of tables will be occupied by the members of the Business Women's Club at the Pops tonight when the program under Mr. Lerner will consist of dance music.

Warner Safe After Crossing the Desert

Langdon Warner of the Smithsonian Institute, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Warner of No. 22 Brimmer street, has safely crossed the Gobi desert, Outer Mongolia, with a caravan of over 200 camels, according to a cablegram to his wife today from Urga, China.

Dallinger to Seek Seat in Congress

Friends of Frederick W. Dallinger of Cambridge today announced he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Eighth district next Fall.

Sun Worshippers Fight with Police

LONDON, June 22.—More than two thousand persons assembled at Stonehenge to witness the rising of the sun on the longest day of the year. The proceedings were marked by great rowdyism. The police and the public almost came to blows through the former interfering with a large party of sun worshippers, who attempted to offer prayers on the altar of stone. The worshipers were warned to desist, and, refusing, were forcibly ejected from the inclosure.

WINTHROP GIRL TELLS OF PERIL IN MEXICO CITY

Boston friends have received for the first time in many months news from Mrs. Antonio Orozco, who was Miss Hortense Emerson, a Winthrop girl, before she married and went to Mexico City to live.

Though in fear of the secret police, she tells of some of the horrors of the Huerta regime, tells of the tearing down of the statue of George Washington, says the Mexican people are hoping intervention will put an end to Huerta's rule. Mrs. Orozco, who was a nurse at the Boston Homeopathic Hospital, writes:

"I hesitate to write very much, for just now it is not safe even to speak one's thoughts and feelings in their own home, to say nothing of putting those sentiments on paper. I guess no one escapes the vigilance of the secret police, and if I dared to write freely, I could tell you some stories that would make you wonder if we really are living in the civilization of the twentieth century.

"Do not worry about us. In nearly every instance the anti-American manifestos were either headed or incited by government officials and some of the highest of these even fell so low as to tear from its pedestal the beautiful bronze statue of George Washington, which was presented to the city by the American colony two years ago, and with automobiles, to drag it disgracefully through the streets. Those were certainly hard days for the poor Americans as well as for other foreigners, for the mobs do not distinguish one nationality from another.

"My husband was able to save the lives of two poor Irishmen. They were going peacefully along the street when suddenly attacked with knives by five big ruffians shouting, 'Muerran los Gringoses.' He succeeded in persuading them that the two men were Irish and not Americans, and so the poor fellows escaped.

"Naturally after days of such high tension, a crisis had to follow, and when the Tampico incident became generally known and the truth of the state of affairs in Vera Cruz was spread abroad, a strong revulsion of feeling set in against those who had been such great deceivers. The anti-American demonstrations have ceased and the situation has become so tense that there are many who do not hesitate to say that foreign rule would be far preferable to present conditions.

"There is no real money anywhere and all business is being carried on with paper money which will probably be absolutely worthless with a change of government. When the crisis comes we shall try to leave the city, if possible, to avoid not only the horrible things which are quite likely to happen, but the scarcity of food products as well."

Nobody! Home—next Thursday.

'Cause "Mother" and the "Kiddies" are going down to Nantasket Beach at the invitation of the Sunday AMERICAN.

Would they like to go? Would a fish swim? You ought to see the good people coming in the AMERICAN'S Promotion Department at No. 5 Winthrop square today, or to the various distributing stations listed in yesterday's Sunday AMERICAN to exchange boat trip coupons for boat tickets.

Didn't you think to clip the boat trip coupon from your Sunday AMERICAN yesterday? No? Well, clip it from today's AMERICAN print, another coupon today. It also prints another announcement, giving details of the trip. But you would do well to get your Sunday AMERICAN out from under the library table or off the shelf, or wherever you keep it, and read over the extra big announcement in it, which gave all the information about this great treat for the mothers and children.

There will be the invigorating sail down the harbor to Nantasket Beach in the staunch vessels, specially chartered for Thursday, of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company.

There will be the equally refreshing return trip. Between the two will be several hours at the beach and FREE admission to Paragon Park, but if you don't it is time you did. It is one of the most notable amusement resorts on the Atlantic Coast and is particularly delightful for women and children.

There is a quantity of free entertainment for the AMERICAN'S boat-trippers in the Park. There are the dancing bears, the seals, the rare water fowl, the storks, the cranes, the swans and others. There is the concert provided by Maitland's Concert Band, of which Mace Gay is conductor.

There will be free Moxie, by courtesy of The Moxie Company.

"Suff sed." Clip your coupon, if you have not done so already, and bring it with ten cents to the AMERICAN'S Promotion Department, or to one of the distributing stations given in the Sunday AMERICAN yesterday.

Don't wait until too late.

LIONS' VICTIM TRAINING TO BE A TAMER

NEW YORK, June 22.—Ernest G. W. Dietrich and his wife of Brooklyn are prostrated and under the care of a physician today as a result of the tragic death in Chicago of their son, Emerson D. Dietrich, who was killed and partly devoured by six lions owned by his fiancee, Miss Adgie Castillo, who was to have married him this Summer.

The elder Dietrich is an architect and is rated as a millionaire. Emerson was a graduate of Cornell University and all his life had been addicted to outdoor sports. His lifelong wish was to be a lion tamer.

About a year ago Dietrich met Miss Castillo, who is well known as a vaudeville performer with lions. Dietrich was engaged as her manager and press representative.

Dispatches which told of the killing stated that Dietrich was cleaning up the railroad car in which the lions were caged when a cub called "Teddy" sprang upon him from behind. The mother lion with a sweep of her paw rolled her offspring away in an evident attempt to save the man's life, but when she got a taste of blood her jungle instincts asserted themselves and she joined in the game.

are just as harmful to children as alcohol is to grown-ups," says Dr. Charlotte Abbey, superintendent of the Women's Directory, New York.

The reason why coffee and tea injure anybody is because these beverages contain the poisonous drug, caffeine, (from 1½ to 3 grains to the cup), which physicians have long known affects the heart, stomach and liver.

Children especially, with their delicate nerves, are susceptible to the action of caffeine, and should never be allowed to have tea or coffee or any other beverage containing drugs.

Thousands of adults have found that their headaches, nervousness, indigestion and sleeplessness have vanished when a change was made from coffee and tea to

ACTRESS WIFE OF MARQUARD PICKS GIANTS

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The jinx is off.

Nothing in the world can prevent the New York Giants from winning the world's championship this season, according to that baseball authority, Blossom Seeley, wife of Rube Marquard, who is appearing at Keith's this week while friend husband attempts to stop the bounding Braves in their career.

The Rube may not always win his ball games, but at shooting a wife he certainly is no slouch, for Blossom is a cunning little thing, pretty, vivacious and a dead in the wool fan.

I found Miss Seeley concluding her rehearsal upon the stage of Keith's and ushered her into the stage manager's office for an interview. Miss Seeley sat down, and while I fired questions at her kept running her fluffy white finger between her silk-clad heel and her shoe.

"Nail in your shoe?" I inquired sympathetically.

"Nervous," confessed the little actress. "It always makes me nervous when I am interviewed."

COULDN'T TOUCH RUBE.

"Well, let's talk about the baseball situation and forget the interview. Do you think New York will win the pennant?"

Mrs. Rube Marquard gazed at me in surprise. "Sure! Sure thing you know. There isn't a team in the class with the Giants. The Cincinnatis are going beyond their speed, Chicago is all shot to pieces and Pittsburgh is gone up in smoke. No chance for anybody to catch us, unless" she added politely, "the Boston Braves should get going."

"Do you travel with the team?"

"Always. I even make the Western trips. I'm the Rube's mascot you know. I have to stay in one place where he can see me or he can't win.

"I was at the Cincinnati game the other day, down front in a box, and Rube was pitching. They couldn't touch him, but in the middle of the game it began to rain. It came down hard. Everybody else beat it under shelter, but I had to stic kit out. If I moved I might change Rube's luck, so I got soaked to the skin. Rube shut them out."

PRESSED MILK" BUCKLE.

Miss Seeley had now transferred her attentions from her shoe to a peculiar looking belt buckle, consisting of two rather large wheels made of some blackish, bluish stuff.

"That's a peculiar looking buckle," I remarked.

"Isn't it? It's made out of pressed milk."

"What?"

"Pressed milk."

"What kind of milk?"

"Search me. Madame Fiscale gave it to me and said that's what it is."

"And you believed it?"

"Well, Rube believed it, and so I do."

"If I told you this pin is made of condensed water would you believe it?"

"Nope," replied the lady. "Milk is sticky but water is too thin."

"What's your act," changing the subject violently.

"Songs and dances. Ragtime stuff, what the people like. I hope they will like it here, they do in other places."

"What kind of costumes?"

AND IS STILL HAPPY.

"I only wear one gown, but of course I'll wear a different gown for each performance. Rube is going to be here tonight. I'm only going on this week because the Giants will be in town.

Mrs. Marquard has been married two years and is still happy. She declares she is going into musical comedy next season, and she says that Rube isn't such a bad actor, better than most baseball players. We talked of lots of things, but mostly about Rube.

Gen. Villa, in Telegram to Mr. Hearst, Tells How He Treats Traitors

Torreon, Mexico, June 20.

W. R. Hearst, New York:

I wish to make known through your newspapers that on this date I have put in force the following decree relating to the Spaniards:

"I, Francisco Villa, general-in-chief of the division of the north of the Constitutionalist army, considering that after the forces under my command took the plazas of Chihuahua and Torreon and of other cities in the Laguna district, I received indisputable proof that the Spanish colony in general had taken an active part in the political affairs of the country, and always in opposition to the legitimate popular ideals, and endeavoring to sustain at all costs the wrongs of Victoriana Huerta; that many Spaniards—'Iberians'—did not hesitate to make loans in the aid of said regime and to render all kinds of moral and material support, and even took up arms in order to combat the army of the people; further, that they by all means at their disposal made active propaganda in favor of the dictator's regime, oppressing and insulting our partisans, and even informing against those who could not escape and who unfortunately suffered in consequence the persecution of the dictator.

"That in view of the aforesaid reasons, and it not being possible for me to overlook completely the conduct of the Spanish colonists on account of the condition of war which obtained, I found myself obliged to decree the expulsion of the Spaniards who resided in the aforementioned, places, exclusive naturally of the families of said persons, who were permitted to remain in Constitutionalist territory, enjoying absolute guarantees of protection.

"Of course, some innocent parties were included in the decree of expulsion, some of whom were men who are really useful to society and the republic in general. Now, in view of the expressed reasons, I have considered it wise to decree the following:

"One—From the date of this decree, all the Spanish subjects who are confident of their innocence, that is to say, of not having mixed directly or indirectly in the political affairs of the country, may return to our territory with every guarantee.

"Two—The Spaniards who are confident that they have in some manner aided the government of the traitor should exercise prudence and caution in returning to the revolutionary zone in order to prevent possible difficulty.

"Given in the Cuartel General at Torreon, on this the twentieth day of the month of June, 1914.

"General-in-Chief.

THREE ENVOYS OF CARRANZA LEAVE FOR WASHINGTON

LAREDO, Tex., June 22.—Three representatives of General Carranza, among them Iglesias Calderon, whose name is being considered by the mediation conferees as provisional president of Mexico, left here today for Washington. They arrived yesterday from Saltillo, where they received instructions from Carranza. The other two members of the party were Leopoldo Espinoza and Alfredo Breceda.

They refused to reveal the nature of their mission, but they evidently regarded it as an important one. It was reported after their departure that they were Carranza's officially accredited delegates to the mediation conference in Niagara Falls.

REBELS EXPECT TO TAKE GUADALAJARA WITHIN FEW DAYS

U. S. S. CALIFORNIA, Mazatlan, Mex., June 21, by wireless to San Diego, Cal., June 22.—Word was received today by Constitutionalists besieging Mazatlan, from General Obregon, stating that his army now controlled the entire State of Jalisco, and that Guadalajara would be occupied within a few days. Several large business houses of Mazatlan have closed, having refused to accept paper money issued by the local Federal authorities.

Judge Utley Gives Drunken Driver 2 Months' Term

WORCESTER, June 22.—Judge Samuel Utley of the Worcester District Court, today sentenced William H. Payne, a West Rutland cotton mill official, to two months in the House of Correction for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

"The court has no sympathy for automobile drivers who get drunk and operate their cars while in that condition. Every such offender should be sent to jail, and will be when they are convicted in this court," said Judge Utley in imposing sentence on Payne. Payne was arrested by Deputy Sheriff E. B. Wallace at Holden after he had thrown two of the occupants of his car into the road as he careened around a sharp turn in the road.

"Square Deal All I Want," Says Wilson

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Discussing his policy toward business and his attitude on "psychological" depression, President Wilson declared today that all he wants is a "square deal." The President said he had no quarrel with any person or corporation that desires legitimately to criticise his policies or the work of Congress, but he contended the systematic circulation of letters and telegrams protesting against anti-trust legislation is open to criticism.

Concord, N. H., Fire Loss Is $7,500

CONCORD, N. H., June 22.—Fire today partly wiped out the grocery store of Charles D. Kent in Grimes' block, spread to the store of Miss Mattie L. Houghton in Pierce block and the furniture storage rooms of William H. Stevens in Walden Hall, causing a damage of $7,500. The fire was discovered by Alexander Urquart. Innis Campbell sounded the fire alarm.

ANDREW FOR POLITENESS IN POLITICS

A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester in a letter today repeating his determination to enter the congressional race in the Sixth District this Fall in opposition to Congressman Gardner, declares he is "profoundly anxious that the members of the Republican and Progressive parties may work again harmony for liberal principles and strong national policies and I believe that the stability of our development and the restoration of our prosperity depend very largely upon such co-operation.

"I am confident," he says, "that nothing can be gained by personal denunciation, or by impugning the integrity and motives of political opponents, however much one may differ in regard to their opinions and principles. I shall not enter upon a money spending contest. I believe that the opportunity to hold public office and to serve the public ought to be open to those of small or moderate means as well as to the well-to-do, and that every precaution should be taken to keep it so.

Andrews was formerly an instructor at Harvard and a Treasury Department official.

LEGISLATURE MAY TAKE VAUDEVILLE OUT OF THE FILMS

The Moving Picture bill, which has been ordered to a third reading in the House of Representatives, carries in its final section the provision that "Chapter 565 of the Acts of the Year 1908 is hereby repealed."

* * *

And the attention of those citizens who may be interested is respectfully called to the fact that the 1908 law which will be repealed if the present bill is enacted is the law which provides that:

* * *

No person, firm, corporation or association of persons shall operate or cause to be operated, and no manager, owner or proprietor of a hall, theatre or other place of amusement shall permit to be used or operated, in any hall, theatre or other place of amusement, any machine or other device for the projection of pictures upon a screen or other substance for a period exceeding—twenty minutes for each film, picture or series of pictures. Every person, firm, corporation or association of persons operating or owning such machines shall, after each film, picture or series of pictures, furnish some other form of amusement or entertainment for a period of not less than five minutes.

* * *

For fifteen sections this bill, "Relative to the inspection of the Cinematograph and to the Exhibition of Motion Pictures," deals with the licensing of operators and assistant operators and the observance of fire precautions.

* * *

Then—bing!—suddenly appears this provision which would apparently change the nature of the moving picture show as it has come to be familiar to the public.

* * *

The original petition for legislation came from the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor.

* * *

The A. F. of L. submitted a bill "for the REGULATION OF THE USE of the cinematograph and similar apparatus."

* * *

This Labor bill was referred to the Committee on Mercantile Affairs, which on April 15 reported the Federation of Labor bill IN A NEW DRAFT.

* * *

On the Committee on Mercantile Affairs are Senators Bagley, Eldridge, Timilty and McDonald, and Representatives Chandler of East Bridgewater, Poole of Belmont, Lucke of Worcester, Carman of Springfield, Cooley of Westfield, Edgell of Gardner, Rich of Everett, Harrington of Fall River, La Cro of Palmer, Sullivan of Holyoke and Sheehan of Boston.

* * *

Entering upon what most people believe and hope and pray may be the last two weeks of the session of 1914.

* * *

By event on the State House calendr this morning was the 10 o'clock meeting of the Committee on Rules. Question before the committee was the suspension of the rules as to new busine,, in order to consider the recommendation of the Committee on Railroads that the Boston & Maine-New Haven affair may be "carefully" considered by a Recess Committee of fifteen members, at $1,000 aplece.

* * *

May be something in the atmosphere of the State House to make this problel, particularly hazy, to the legislative hand, but to the man in the street it seems almost as simple as two plus two equals four.

* * *

What IS the problem, except to tell the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, which purchased a controlling interest in the Boston & Maine in violation of the laws of Massachusetts, to dispose of that interest without further quibble?

* * *

Feature of today's Committee on Rules procedure was expected to be the appearance of various and sundry members of the Committee on Railroads to say that, so far as they are aware, they never voted in favor of a Recess Committee!

* * *

Feeling prevailed at the State House, early in the day, that the Committee on Rules will be against letting the Recess bill in; against, that is, the consideration of this new legislation (the Recess Committee bill) at this date in the session.

* * *

However, you never can tell.

* * *

Authorities agree that the Recess Committee bill can be traced at least as far as Senate President Calvin Coolidge, although it bears the name of Senator McLane of Fall River.

* * *

Alternative to the Recess Committee appears to be the "Whoa Thir" bill, providing for the sale of the New Haven's Boston & Maine shares with a vermillion stamp on their backs:

* * *

"THIS STOCK MAY AT ANY TIME BE TAKEN OUT OF PURCHASED BY THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS AT THE PAIR VALUE THEREOF IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE LAW."

* * *

And the presumed danger of THAT legislation is that the New Haven "may not accept it."

* * *

You ask the man who says the New Haven may not accept such an act WHY the New Haven will not accept it.

* * *

His answer, invariably, is that the "Massachusetts May Buy" stamp would make it impossible to find a customer.

* * *

Inasmuch as that happy situation would mean that the New Haven would have to keep on owning the Boston & Maine the situation makes one a'rifle headachy.

* * *

On the other hand, it is QUITE as bewildering to reflect that most of those who yell the loudest for the "string" are almost as fond of Public Ownership as they are of strychnine in coffee. In most cases they would jump from the Gilded Dome before they would vote to submit to the people the question of buying the B. & M.

* * *

Most of the commoners around the State House, however, feel that that red stamp on Boston & Maine certificates will neither help nor harm them. Like "Made in Germany."

* * *

They are calling the "string" bill the "Who's This" bill now because so many gentlemen have, at various times, been designated as its pa.

* * *

George W. Anderson and Moorfield Storey collaborated on the original, which Senate President Calvin Coolidge asked for and somebody else had printed. Bob Washburn then inserted the "string," which Senator Ed Fisher and House Chairman George Ellis elaborated until the bill is as you see it.

* * *

The popular name for it as the State House is the "string" bill.

* * *

"String" bill!

* * *

Makes you wonder if, when the Legislature has done adjourned and gone "hum" the accent may turn out to be on the STRING.

* * *

Let's talk about something pleasant.

* * *

Representative Peter F. Tague returned to the legislative works this forenoon to receive congratulations all around on the Sunday announcement of his Congress candidacy.

* * *

As House leader of the militant Democrats of Beacon Hill, Mr. Tague has been performing a wonderful service for his party and the state. He will share almost equally with Governor Walsh in the honor that goes with proud achievement. A bit of pleasing personality and strong character, Mr. Tague is one of the fortunate score who will be remembered in connection with the work of 1914.

* * *

The Tenth Congressional District, where Representative Tague seeks the Democratic nomination for Congress, is made up of his native Charlestown, East Boston, Wards 6, 7, 8 and 9 and two precincts of Ward 11.

'PIED PIPER' OF QUINCY LEADS IN CITY HALL RAID

The Pied Piper of Hamelin is the latest role to be essayed by Edward P. Powers, the barber candidate for mayor of Quincy.

Playing upon a harmonica instead of a pipe, Mr. Powers led as procession of several scores of children from Hough's Neck to the City Hall. They did not walk all the way, but came up in a special car, but upon the outskirts of the city proper they all descended, and to the martial strains of "Who Paid the Rent for Pip Van Winkle's Wife," executed by the candidate for mayor with unusual technical skill, they invaded City Hall where Mayor Miller holds forth.

"We want a playground at the Beach," shouted the youngsters in unison, while Candidate Powers presented a petition drawn up by himself. This petition is a work of literature, and contains several words of seven or eight syllables.

"UBIQUITOUS," NOT DEROGATORY.

"Ubiquitous" is perhaps the most striking word in the petition and is applied to a policeman.

"In what sense do you call the officer ubiquitous?" demanded Mayor Miller, hoping the word might have slipped in without proper consideration.

"Nothing derogatory, not in the least derogatory to the cop," replied Eddie who doesn't mean to insult anybody who has a vote in Quincy. "It just means that he is on the job. Wherever the Hough's Neck kids go to start a game of ball the officer turns up right away. The Century dictionary says that ubiquitous means somebody who can be in several places at once. That Hough's Neck cop is it."

Mayor Miller promised to take the petition under advisement. Candidate Powers struck up a tune on his harmonica and when the kids were all out on the street again he said:

"You kids are all invited over to my shop to see the only four-legged chicken in captivity."

Asked by the AMERICAN reporter about the result of his visit to the Mayor Mr. Powers was very frank.

"Any way he turns, I got him," he declared. "If he gives them a playground who was it organized the kids and took them up there to dedicate it?"

THE WAY TO WIN FATHER.

"Why, Eddie Powers, the independent candidate for Mayor that always has the interest of the kids of Quincy at heart?"

"If he turns them down, who is it that will give them a swell playground if elected? Why, Eddie Powers, the independent candidate for Mayor and the poor man's friend.

"Every one of those kids that was here has got a father who has a vote. If you want to get at the father be nice to the children. Besides, it's a darn shame that the boys can't play ball anywhere at Hough's Neck because the vacant lots are all gone."

Bullet Is Removed From Rothschild

PARIS, June 22.—An operation was performed today upon Baron Henri Rothschild, the famous philanthropist, and the bullet which was fired into his leg by an assassin on Saturday night was removed. The wounded man is expected to be able to leave his bed within a week. The assailant, Francois Prudhon, whose anger had been aroused over the fact that his business man had been ruined by one of the DeRothschild charittes to furnish free milk for the poor, will probably be committed to an asylum for the insane.

Boston Man to Open Convention

CHICAGO, June 22.—Delegates to the fourteenth International Sunday School Convention began arriving here today, and by tomorrow night, when the gathering will be formally opened, more than 4,000 churchmen are expected to be present. The convention will be opened by William H. Harlahorn of Boston, president of the association.

SUBWAY WORK HITS BOYLSTON ST. MERCHANTS

Boylston street merchants complain that they have lost thousands of dollars in business through the use of Copley square by the Nawn Construction Company, which is building the Boylston street subway.

The streets in that section largely have been monopolized by the Nawn Company for eighteen months past, as a central distributing point for their subway construction supplies.

In addition to this, Copley square itself, owned by the city and appraised at a round million dollars, has been turned over to the Nawns rent free for storage and other purposes.

With ankle-deep mud making Boylston street in that vicinity almost impassable at times, while the city-owned plot of land is piled high with supplies, old sacks and concrete mixers, business has fallen off heavily as a result of existing Nawn-made conditions.

Merchants who previously did a thriving business along Boylston street, between Dartmouth and Clarendon streets, either have been compelled to vacate their stores or conduct business at heavy losses.

Nine vacant stores today are found in this short stretch of street, where eighteen-month rent-free use of the million-dollar city-owned land by the Nawns has obtained, and still continues.

Formerly considered one of the most attractive sections of the Back Bay district in which to do business, because of the surrounding sections, still other merchants now assert that they, too, will be compelled to vacate unless the Nawn-made conditions speedily are done away with.

"There is a limit to one's endurance," declared F. H. Lucas, manager of the Pope-Hartford Company, with warerooms at No. 591 Boylston street. "We have lost thousands since the Nawn Company established their central distributing plant opposite our place of business. It will be a happy day for us when they end it all—but nobody seems to know when that will be."

Mrs. R. A. Radlow, proprietor of the "Radlow Hat Studio," at No. 589 Boylston street, was even more emphatic in her denunciation of Copley square conditions, since the Nawns took possession.

F. P. Sheehan, manager of the W. B. Crocker store at No. 569 Boylston street said: "The Nawn Company ought be made to stop using Copley square for a storage and distributing warehouse, immediately. There is no just reason why merchants in this vicinity should be made to suffer any longer.

"We were told, at first, that the square would be cleared by Winter. July 1 was then set as the date for the Nawns to move. But conditions are as bad today as ever, and no one seems to be able to tell us when we will be free to do business under normal conditions again."

Inquiry at the Transit Comulsion's office showed that the Nawn Company did not get permission to use Copley Square for a store house and distributing centre from anybody in authority there.

It was also stated at the offices of the City Auditor, the City Collector and the Park and Recreation Departments, later, that no records could be found of the Nawns having paid the city so much as a penny for the use of this million-dollar property.

T. R. Feeling Fine on Ocean Liner

ON BOARD STEAMSHIP IMPERATOR, VIA CAPE RACE, June 22.—Colonel Roosevelt is unable to understand how reports that he is ill have reached the United States. Queen Mary Made a British Colonel

LONDON, June 22.—Queen Mary, is now a Colonel in the British Army, while the corresponding rank is to be held by Queen Alexandra and two Princesses. These appointments, the first of the kind ever made in the British Army, were announced as a novel feature of the King's birthday honors.

Westwood Child Struck by Auto Which Runs Away

Harvey Nims, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Nims of Washington street, Westwood, is dying at the Massachusetts General Hospital from injuries which he received by being struck and knocked down by an automobile, bearing a Providence number, near his home last Friday evening. He was removed to the hospital in an ambulance at the instigation of Policeman Albert C. Crocker of the Westwood police. The latter did not report the matter to his superior, Chief Fred C. Fisher, it became known today. Policeman Crocker said the boy was riding on the back of a wagon and stepped in front of the approaching automobile, and that the chauffeur was blameless. Crocker further said that he did not know the name of the chauffeur or the number of the machine.

President Hints at New Haven Suit

WASHINGTON, June 22.—President Wilson today indicated to his callers that if the bill in the Massachusetts Legislature providing for the separation of the New Haven road from the Boston & Maine should fail, the Department of Justice would have no other course than to sue for dissolution in the federal courts. He said he had received no information about the bill in the Legislature and had not recently communicated with Governor Walsh on the matter.

King William Seeks Peace at Durazzo

ROME, June 22.—King William of Albania opened peace negotiations with the rebels today, it was reported in a dispatch from Durazzo. A three days' truce has been granted at Elbasan, where the rebellious Albanians are attacking the city. It is believed that the peace parley will fail.

Aviator Atwood and Bride Safe After Big Storm

SANDUSKY, O., June 22.—Harry N. Atwood, the Toledo aviator, who was missing for twenty-four hours, and believed lost in the lake with his bride, is safe at Bono, a small town on the shore of Lake Erie, twelve miles from Toledo.

News to this effect was received here this afternoon. Atwood was flying with his wife from Cedar Point to Toledo in a hydro-aeroplane. He left the Point at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Late in the afternoon he was forced down by a thunder storm which swept the lake. He landed on a small island in the lake. During the night he managed to get ashore at Bono. Neither his wife nor himself were injured.

GILL GALLANT MEETS MURPHY IN TITLE GO

By JACK CONWAY.

EDDIE MURPHY and Gilbert Gallant both stated today that they were ready for their twelve-round bout, which is scheduled to be decided at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night. The contest has aroused considerable interest among ftstic lovers, as the lightweight championship of New England hangs in the balance. The title is held by Murphy, but Gallant is confident that he will breeze in a winner.

Neither Murphy nor Gallant is very strong for a blanket finish. Each of them desires to win by a decisive margin and does not care to flash through the final stanza with a slight margin to the good. Both boys say that they will start fighting at a fast pace from the opening of the first session until the tussle comes to a close.

It is evident that neither of the boys intends to depend upon a sudden spurt in the latter part of the whirl as the Crimson clad (this is considered very proper wording) Harvard oarsmen did in their race with the stalwart sons of Old Eli on the Thames last Friday.

ON paper it looks as though Murphy and Gallant should put up a hard, fast fight. We would not be so foolish as to guarantee that the bout was going to be a sensational affair as boxing matches, like ball games, often develop into one-sided affairs. But if Murphy and Gallant perform at their best those who gather around the ringside should witness a spirited struggle.

Murphy is recognized as one of the best boxers of his weight in the East. We doubt very much whether he would be able to make 133 pounds and still give a good account of himself but this does not handicap his ring value in the least as it is no longer fashionable for the honorable members of our lightweight division to reduce to 133 pounds. It is the custom for the present day lightweights to scale in at 135 pounds, and as Murphy and Gallant have agreed to weight in at this weight at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon they should both be strong for their battle.

MURPHY seems to have a little something on New England's lightweights when performing at 135 pounds. He defeated Matty Baldwin, Gilbert Gallant and Joe Eagan at this weight last fall and will try and retain his laurels tomorrow night.

The Gallant of today, however, is a much better boxer than the one who lost to Murphy a year ago. Gill has been a consistent winner and has pleased with his natural qualifications of a good performer.

ALEX MILLAN, Gallant's manager, has declared that his protege has improved at least forty per cent during the past year and that Eddie never owes a thing or two about ring affairs. He recently piloted the Chelsea boy in a campaign on the Pacific Coast where he made a fine showing. California boxing critics, who are supposed to know a real fighter when they see one, asserted that Gallant was a comer and predicted a future for him and Al Wolgast. They maintained that he had the durability of the "Durable Dane" while he had the aggressiveness of the husky Michigan Wildcat.

GALLANT decisively defeated "One Round" Hogan in a twenty-round bout in Salt Lake City, while he fought twenty-round draws with Danny O'Brien, "Fred" Watson and Frankie Burns. Burns is perhaps the best known of Gallant's opponents. He was boomed for the lightweight championship a few years ago, but was defeated by Wolgast after a hard fight. Burns is as good, if not a better boxer than Murphy. The latter if Gallant can hold a man of Burns' ability scored a decisive victory he should be able to give a good account of himself against the skilful Murphy.

IT is not an easy task to hold a boxer of the gallant type at bay as he is usually always forging ahead and keeps close to his opponent at all times. Murphy naturally rules a favorite, but those "fans" who are bringing along with Gallant point to the fact that he has improved a great deal since he last met Murphy.

Golf Wins Place on Olympic Card; Ice Hockey Barred

PARIS, June 22.—Golf contests in which women will participate, ice and speed ice skating and sailing have been given places on the future Olympic games by the delegates to the international Olympic congress.

Gymnastics will be left out, but only in the games of 1916.

Ice hockey was barred as an event. It was decided that yachting should be confined to two classes of boats—metre and eight metre boats—but shall be sailed by amateurs exclusively under the rules of the International Racing Association.

The admission of golf was on motion of James C. Sullivan. The motion was passed by a small majority.

Date of the Harvard Games Are Changed

Instead of holding the Harvard interscholastic track and field championships on the first Saturday in June, the day on which the Andover and Exeter ball teams meet, the meet will be held at the Stadium on May 15, next year. Both Exeter and Andover representatives protested because of the conflict this year, and Manager Jimmy Greenough of the Harvard track team and Graduate Manager Fred W. Moore decided to put the meet ahead.

The new date also provides a track double-header as the Harvard and Yale freshman track meets will precede the finals of the school meet. The trials for the 220-yard, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard low hurdles, running broad jump, running high jump, pole vault and hammer throw will be held in the morning.

BASEBALL MEN IN CONFERENCE ON NEW LEAGUE

NEW YORK, June 22.—Preliminary steps toward the formation of a third major league were taken today at a conference between Edward G. Barrows, J. J. Stein, Jack Dunn and J. D. McCaffery, of the International League, and Garry Herrmann and Ban Johnson, members of the National Commission.

The new league is designed to bring about the extermination of the Federal League, the thorn in the side of organized baseball, by the formation of four clubs from the International League and an equal number from the American Association.

It was stated that Charles Weeghman, owner of the Chicago Federal League franchise, and the Wards, who own the Brooklyn Federal entry, have become disgusted with the management of affairs in the Federal League and have expressed a desire to cast their fortune with the new organization.

The probable lineup of the new league will be: Baltimore, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Washington, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati and Louisville. Four of these cities, Detroit, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Washington, are represented in either the International League or American Association, but according to well informed reports franchises will be transferred to these cities. Pittsburgh and Washington are likely to get two International League clubs, while two of the American clubs will be transferred to Detroit and Cincinnati. The eight remaining clubs of the two leagues are to be amalgamated into a Class AA minor league.

Two cities which are likely to lose franchises are Kansas City in the American Association and Toronto in the International League. One great advantage of the proposed new league is that it will make a compact circuit with about one-half the mileage of the National and American Leagues.

President Ban Johnson of the American League, when seen after today's conference, said that he and Garry Herrmann would confer tomorrow on the plans for the new league, and strongly intimated that the national commission had virtually decided to adopt the proposition.

"Mr. Tener will not be here," said Johnson, "but Mr. Herrmann and myself will discuss all phases of the proposal."

The suggestion for the formation of a new league grew out of the request of the International League for assistance in combatting the inroads of the Federal League in Baltimore and Buffalo. Two plans had been laid before the national commission to afford the necessary relief. One was that the draft privilege of the major leagues be taken off the International, thus elevating the latter into the major league class. The other was that financial assistance be given to the Baltimore and Buffalo clubs to help them weather the storm.

After lengthy deliberation the members of the national commission decided against both plans, as it was regarded as certain that if the International were admitted to the major league class the American Association and Pacific Coast League would make a similar request, which it would not be possible to grant. The formation of a new third league was then brought forward as a compromise.

Women Golfers in Chestnut Hill Play

The Women's G. A. of Boston will hold an eighteen-hole handicap medal play at the Chestnut Hill Golf Club Thursday, open to all players belonging to clubs affiliated with the association.

The play is scheduled for the morning, and a number of the best women players of the Boston district are expected to take part.

There will be no entrance fee for the two prizes offered, one of which will be given jointly by Miss Fanny C. Osgood and Mrs. F. W. Batchelder, and the other by the Chestnut Hill Golf Club.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

TODAY winds up the campaign of the Western National League clubs in the East. The Cards will meet the Braves in the fourth game of the series at the South End grounds, and if they win they will only get an even break. They came here in the scrappiest kind of an outfit, but were somewhat subdued in Saturday's fracas, although they made a bold attempt to win out in the ninth.

The Braves have proved themselves to be steady under fire, and the hustling Cards have nothing on them in the way of gameness.

* * *

WITH the departure of the St. Louis team tonight a review of the games between the Braves and the Western clubs will be in order. It will be found that Stallings' men didn't lose a single series to the visiting clubs. They have played an article of ball that will, if continued, shove them right ahead in the National League race.

Already they are within a few points of seventh place. They have filled the tail-end position ever since the season started on April 14. Now the Brooklyns are so close that an afternoon may see them change places in the percentage column.

And the other clubs in the second division are not far enough ahead to brag about it.

The National League race, as well as the American League race, is growing closer every day. The month of July promises to be not only naturally warm, but very hot from a baseball standpoint.

* * *

WHILE the Cincinnati Reds were the sensation of the first part of the season, the gingery work of the St. Louis Cardinals has recently attracted a whole lot of attention from the baseball world. Before playing here Huggins' team was in Brooklyn for a series. Here is what Jake Daubert, first baseman and captain of the Dodgers, has to say of the St. Louis crew:

"On the level, I haven't seen a team in years that is showing more ginger, more speed and more elasticity. You aren't safe from those fellows, even if you have a dozen runs banked up to keep you happy. Anywhere along the road they are likely to come at you like a flock of bulldogs and chew your nose at least all to ribbons."

* * *

THE warlike attitude of the Cards is somewhat a mystery to the Eastern clubs in the paper, and as a matter of baseball fact, they do not amount to much. Their batting is collectively very light, and as a rule they do not come forward with very many long wallops, although they showed some heavy stick-work in the Friday game here—all bunched in the eighth inning.

BUT they seem to have acquired the trick that made the old Cleveland Spiders, under Patsy Tebeau, fearful of every other club in the National League—the art of massing a few short hits, these on balls and opponents' errors in a heap and piling up the runs when least expected.

They seem to go along very quietly for awhile, when they suddenly wake up and raise the very dickens.

* * *

WHAT applied to the Cards applies in a large measure to the Braves. Stallings' men are likely to push out a lot of runs when least expected. They all work the opposing pitchers for all there is in it and take advantage of every opportunity with the bat. In the last two weeks there is not a club in the National League that has been going any better than our Boston team.

* * *

HERZOG is mighty sorry to lose Marsans, who jumped to the St. Louis Federals. There is a suit as a result of his jump, but there will be no action on it for several days.

"What a ball-player!" mourns Herzog. "I'd have made out of this Marsans if he had only stuck to the colors! Mind you, when I speak of teaching Marsans, I am not conceited enough to talk about educating him in things where he was already my superior.

"Marsans could teach me things in batting, straightaway running, trapping fly balls—there was nothing I could show him mechanically, except, perhaps, how not to overslide a base—one fault he had at times. I'd have been glad to receive lessons from the Cuban in many things, and would have insisted that he teach me, too. Where I could have educated Marsans would have been in the points of team play—of making every effort count—of playing more for the club, less for his own glory. And he'd have become a wonder in a little while.

"I am sore at him for his behavior, and I consider him a disorganizer. And yet I must admit that the Spaniard is a great ball-player. He is too sensitive. He should remember that baseball is a red-blooded game for rough and hardy men, and that the language that flies back and forth when such men are criticizing each other is often full of sulphur. He quits on the least bruise, quits if his temper is offended. Temperament, that's all —but what can a fellow do about it?"

* * *

WALTER JOHNSON, star pitcher of the Washington Americans, has made the following remarkable statement:

"The Federal League made me a proposition, which, if carried out, would make me rich in a few years. I am, naturally, out for the money, but I am no hog. I am a loyal ball-player. I have been treated well by Manager Griffith, and I recognize that organized baseball has enabled me to make what success I have made professionally and financially, and I do not propose to let a rival organization see me in an endeavor to wreck those who have made my success possible. I am not in the market for the highest bidder."

Richards to Swim Durborow This Week

Sam Richards of South Boston and Charles Durborow of Philadelphia will meet Saturday to decide the amateur long-distance swimming championship of America at Philadelphia in a 24-mile race in the Delaware River.

Durborow holds the record for the Chester-Philadelphia and return swim, as he does the single trip. He has covered the route between the two cities in his training for Saturday's race.

Richards has contented himself with short swims in Dorchester, having been handicapped by cold water.

MRS. COURTNEY IN CHARGE OF CORNELL CAMP

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 22.—The main reason why the Cornell crews have been so successful in years gone by is because of the minute attention given to every detail concerning their training by Coach Charles E. Courtney, his assistants, and by Courtney's wife, who for years has acted as "mother" to the "sailors" in the Cornell "navy."

When other boat crews land at Poughkeepsie about three weeks before the big boat race they usually have to spend about a week getting their quarters in shape. No one pays any real attention as to what kind of water they drink. And no one carefully examines into every bit of food they eat.

But with Cornell it is different. A week or so before the boys are to go to Poughkeepsie for the final two or three weeks of training on the Hudson, "Mother" Courtney journeys up to Poughkeepsie, invades the Cornell quarters and aided and abetted by a squad of women puts the place in a spic and span condition. When the boys arrive, everything is ready for them.

WATER IS ANALIZED.

Mrs. Courtney, under the direction of her famous husband, has a chemist analyze the Poughkeepsie water each year. If it isn't quite up to standard it is rejected, and if no suitable water is found in that neighborhood, Courtney has a big supply shipped on from Ithaca—the kind of water that the boys are used to drinking.

It has been found on numerous occasions that a change in drinking water has so affected the general health of a crew that it has wrecked their chances.

Mrs. Courtney takes care of the job of ordering the food. She sees to it that every bit of food that comes into the quarters for consumption by the boys is fresh and just exactly what she has ordered. And she super vises the cooking, making sure that everything is as it should be.

Down at the boat house, John Hoyle, assistant to Courtney, and a famous boat builder, sees to it that before the boys set into a shell everything is in perfect shape.

Every bit of rigging must fit. The seats must slide just right. The shoe must be of exactly the right kind and fit. Not the slightest detail in getting the boat ready is ever overlooked by Hoyle, for he knows that if he does the eagle eye of Courtney will spot it in a fraction of a second.

BRAVES CONTINUE HARD BATTLE TO SHAKE TITLE OF CELLAR CHAMPIONS

BRAVES IN HARD FIGHT TO SHAKE CELLAR BERTH

With a margin of six points, separating them from seventh place, the Braves will go after the wind-up with the Cardinals with all the power they can muster at Walpole street this afternoon.

The Cards are sore over being stopped twice by the Braves in their effort to remain in the first division and will send forth their trump card today in the person of Slim Sallee.

If Charlie Schmidt has recovered sufficiently from his recent injury he will be back on first base. The pitching duties will fall to Otto Hess. If the Toledo pretzel-maker is obliged to cover the initial bag none other than Gallaher's distinguished Hubbard Perdue will toe the rubber for Stallings' band.

The game today is very important to the Cardinals as well. They were ousted from third position by losing Saturday and are anxious to maintain a high berth on this, their first Eastern inning.

The Braves are keen to get out of the cellar position and find that by waiting St. Louis twice, when a three-straight win should have been registered, they are on the road to good deeds.

The Cardinals are without doubt an scrappiest team that has visited Boston this year and while their blustery tactics fail to please the fans, everybody has a wholesome regard for the band of fighters Miller Huggins has at his command.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

PRESIDENT JACK DUNN OF the BALTimore International League club declares that he could realize nearly $100,000 if he cared to place ten of his best players on the market.

"THE OTHER DAY CHARLES COMISKEY of the White Sox offered me $50,000 for six men," he said. "Practically every big league scout has come to me trying to purchase some of my men."

DUNN WOULD NOT NAME THE PLAYers wanted by Chicago. He spoke in soft glowing terms of a number of his pets that a guess of Ruth, Shore, Twombly, Cpe, Daniels and Derrick would not be far out of the way.

GOVERNOR TENER BELIEVES IN LETting the public settle the issue between organized and independent baseball. Of course he stands firm for the principle of public rights and the old, established institution. Long and Major League chatter, though, has it that Manager Herzog would like a chance to show the fans looking up his records for some time to come.

PETE DALEY HAS ALREADY BEGUN TO form his sensational fielding for the Yankees. The shift is not so distasteful to the ex-Athletic, as he is to split $6.50 with Umpire Walsh on that world's series dividend next Fall.

THE CLEVELAND CLUB HAS RECALLED Morton, a pitcher from the Waterbury club of the Eastern Association. Morton has been the leading twirler in the league for months, having won 20 games, and he should easily duplicate Watherbury by pitching a model game and batting fifteen batsmen.

JACK LAPP HAS BEEN DOING FINE work behind the bat during the absence of Wally Schang. He is a fine receiver and the only injuries that he will soon be able to take his regular place behind the bat.

HEINIE GROH OF THE REDS HAS A position at the plate that differs greatly from the stand of any other player in the game. As the ball is pitched Heinie begins to shift and he is in good position when he makes his swing.

RANKIN JOHNSON, LIKE WALTER, IS strong for shutout games. When he is not pitching one his team is getting the whitewash. The St. Louis Browns are the latest to score a shutout against A. Rankin.

THE ST. LOUIS FEDS ARE MAKING A second baseman out of Maranda. The Cuban has had plenty of experience at both infield and outfield positions since his debut came to the United States and he is a capable infielder.

TWO RED SOX PITCHERS THREATEN TO JOIN FEDS

CHICAGO, Ill., June. 22.—Two Boston pitchers today were billed to confer with the officials of the Federal League, and if they can come to terms the chances are that they will leap from the Boston Red Sox to the third organization.

George Foster and Amos Rankin Johnson, young and star twirlers, are the men.

They have had the last word from President Lannin. It is that under no consideration will he give them a cent more in salary, and that if they care to jump their contracts that no restraining hand will be placed upon them.

Of course if they leap then President Lannin will attempt to stop them pitching. He will go to the courts in the attempt to protect his rights.

The story went the rounds today that the two were scheduled for a final conference with President Gilmore of the third league. One was scheduled for last night, but it was not held.

According to the dope which went the rounds Johnson and Foster gave President Lannin an opportunity of meeting the terms which had been offered by the Feds.

If they expected that the Boston magnate would leap at the opportunity of holding them at any price they were fooled.

Foster might have done better if he had come to terms prior to yesterday's game. He wasn't able to go the distance against the Chicago White Sox, and they beat him, 5 to 3. Foster pitched five rounds, and all of the Chicago scores were made while he was on the slab.

It was an exciting day in Chicago. Not only did the two Boston pitchers announce that they were conferring with the Feds, but Hal Chase actually jumped.

He showed up at the Sox grounds in the morning, took his personal belongings and played first base for the Buffalo Club of the Federal League in the afternoon.

Today President Comiskey announced that he would go the limit in trying to stop Chase. The old Roman said that Hal had told him he was pleased with conditions on the South Side, and that he wanted to leave baseball in order to enter business in Philadelphia.

Now the Old Roman will do everything in his power to stop Chase from playing ball with the Federal League. He expects to secure an injunction and serve it on Hal the first time he plays.

Meanwhile, Harry Lord, former Red Sox third baseman, and who left the White Sox a few weeks ago, is still in Chicago. It was expected that he would join Chase yesterday. But he failed to appear on the field.

It was reported that he attended the Federal League game in Chicago. Chase and Lord have been great pals since Hal came to the White Sox, and every one expects to see the former Sox captain in a Federal League uniform before the end of the week.

There was so much jumping and talking of jumping that the fourth game of the series between the two branches of the Sox family was almost forgotten.

The Chicago Sox won, 5 to 2. The final game will be played today, and it is likely that Johnson will twirl for the Boston lads if he fails to come to an agreement with the Feds, while Scott will probably perform for the White Sox.

Only Ten Entries in Rich Handicap

NEW YORK, June 22.—Only ten horses are announced as possible starters for the once famous Brooklyn handicap, at one mile and a quarter, tomorrow, the opening day of the Queens County Jockey Club meeting at Aqueduct.

This fixture, which made the old Gravesend track famous, still carries a big stake, although the added money, subscribed into year by the Owners' Fund, is only $2,500. The probable starters are: Rock View, 113; Meridian, 126; Muskin, 118; Lahorn, 117; Flying Fairy, 116; Buckhorn, 113; Lake McLake, 113; Charlestonian, 107; Donald McDonald, 105; Thornhill, 99.

Record Golf Field in Brae-Burn Match

A record field has entered theBrae-Burn's open golf tournament Thursday and Saturday. On Thursday there will be a qualifying round, 18 holes, the best sixteen to qualify for match play at scratch and second and third sixteens to compete later on a handicap match play basis.

John G. Anderson will be seen in match play (assuming he qualifies), for this first time since he had the honor of being runner-up for the 1910 national amateur championship

COBB MAY QUIT HOME AND CLUB TO AVOID CELL

DETROIT, June 22.—Ty Cobb is so keenly disgraced by his revolver flourishing escapade of Saturday evening and the uncertainty of his arrest on a warrant to be sworn out by W. L. Carpenter, the aggrieved butcher, that it is believed by friends to whom he has confided his troubles, that he will jump the town to avoid arrest, and will join the Federal League, to make it unnecessary for him ever to return to Detroit.

He has been dissatisfied here since his holdout of 1913. He has let it be known, in conversation, that the Federal League has offered him more money than he can hope to get from organized baseball, and that if the new league is doing business next year and looking well, he will accept the Gilmore offer.

Comiskey to Fight Against Hal Chase

CHICAGO, June 22.—Flops will be taken today to restrain Hal Chase from playing another game with the Buffalo Federal League team. This announcement was made by President Comiskey of the White Sox immediately upon receipt of word that his star first baseman had jumped the traces and appeared yesterday afternoon in the Buffalo lineup against Joe Tinker's Feds.

"I doubt if the Buffalo club will attempt to play Chase in Monday's game at the Federal League park," said President Comiskey of the White Sox this morning. "We will fight this thing out in the courts if it takes all Summer. Chase will be stopped from playing for any club other than the White Sox. A restraining order will be sought to block him here."

Syracuse Gets O'Brien.

Jimmy O'Brien, formerly of Holy Cross, who recently signed with the Red Sox, has been sent to the Syracuse club.

CUP YACHTS IN READINESS FOR NEW RACE TESTS

NEW YORK, June 22.—Having undergone various changes, the three cup class yachts—the Defiance, the Resolute and the Vanitie—will resume their tuning-up contests this week in upper Long Island Sound.

The first race in the long series arranged for the yachts will be held off Greenwich tomorrow, under the auspices of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club of that port.

The New York Yacht Club will continue the sport with a race for the trio in connection with the annual regatta of that club on the 25th.

Friday and Saturday the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club will hold races for the boats off Oyster Bay.

The Long Island Sound series will close on the following week, after which the three yachts will go to Newport for six weeks of racing, in which each event will count in the selection of a boat for the defence of the America's cup.

The Defiance will appear this week as a typical knockabout, having been shorn of what little bowsprit she carried when she met her rivals for a brief hour and a half off Sandy Hook on June 10.

The most successful yachts turned out by George Owen, the designer of the Defiance, have been of the knockabout type, with all sails aboard, and a short pole mast.

2 CHAMPIONS FOR RACE MEET AT BEACH OVAL

Two real champions, but each the leader in a different class, will be the attraction at the Revere Beach oval tomorrow night. The men are Frank Kramer, the title holder in the sprint class, and George Wiley of Syracuse, who wears the crown among the middle-distance pace followers.

Kramer will meet Alfred Goullet, the best of the Australian short distance men, in a special match race, postponed last week on account of the bad weather.

Wiley will race Menus Bedell and Bobby Walthour in a twenty-five mile motor paced event, and this will make Wiley's first race at the Beach since he was injured at New Haven a mopth ago.

The race against Walthour and Bedell will serve as a good test for the champion. Bedell surprised everybody by the way he forced Carman at the beach oval recently, while Walthour has just set up a new motor-paced record for thirty miles, travelling the distance in close to a mile a minute.

FREE BASEBALL TICKETS FOR THE
Red Sox AND National Games
AT HOME

Are YOU among those enjoying the Boston games at the expense of the American?

YOU CAN BE. HERE'S THE WAY TO GET THE TICKETS:

Thousands of numbered checks have been and are being distributed each day among AMERICAN readers. Each check contains a special number.

A list of numbers is being printed in the AMERICAN each week day in the 10 o'clock edition and Sporting Extra edition ONLY, and in the Sunday AMERICAN. One hundred numbers will be printed each day until further notice. When a duplicate of the number on the check you hold appears in the 10 o'clock edition or Sporting Extra edition, bring or send check to the AMERICAN Business Office, No. 5 Winthrop square, and receive a free ticket to any one of the Boston baseball games on the home grounds. Your duty ends, in the first place, if both your convenience and the AMERICAN'S is good, at the office at Friday Park or Washington street any time during the season that you present it.

If you haven't yet obtained a check ask your newsdealer for some. Be sure and save your checks and refer to the numbers each day because if the duplicate number does not appear in the AMERICAN today it may be printed to-morrow. But when it does appear it means a free baseball ticket for you.

"Don't let that there lion frighten yer, miss!" said the keeper at the menagerie to Kitty; "he looks ferce, but he's as tame as an old cat!"

"Did you ever kill lions?" said Kitty to Major Domo, who was boring her dreadfully. "Oh, my, ya-as," replied the major; "I've shot hundreds of the beastly things."

"Well," said Kitty to herself while the Major and keeper were talking, "I'll just let this old lion out for a walk and see what the Major does."

"My, my, what a noise" exclaimed Kitty as the lion let out a roar that caused the Major to disappear so quickly that all you could see was a streak of dust.

"You'll just have to go back into your cage," said Kitty to the lion; "we've got too many big noises around here, and, giving "his majesty" a slap, she shoo-ed him inside.

"Why, Major, where did you go?" asked mischievous Kitty. "I thought you weren't afraid of lions?" "I'm not, 'pon my honor," said the Major. "I went to get my gun, y'know?"

"Ah! Welcome, Anna Mirrel! Your charming presence cheers my lonely room. It is really too bad to have kept you waiting so long," said the Baron, advancing with a smile that was intended to be disarmingly fatherly.

SMILED WITH AWE

The girl smiled at him with a little mixture of awe and wonder and tired gratitude because she was admitted to this sanctuary.

She felt the rich elegance of the room, although she did not guess the separate value of each object of virtu. She did not know how many hand-tied knots to the inch that priceless old Herati rug possessed. But she had a quick moment in which she compared the splendor here with her little home in the Pale. She thought of the earthen floor of her humble home. Again through a mist of tears, she could see herself a child, helping her sainted mother on the evening of the Sabbath. Before the dusk, the house must be swept and garnished, the cooking and baking done and everything so well arranged that work might cease from the sunset hour on Friday evening until the sunset hour of Saturday had come and gone.

They had laid clean rushes on the earthen floor—and those cool, green rushes were as beautiful in their freshness as this wonderfully woven carpet at her feet. The child Anna had been allowed to kindle the "Sabbath-lamp" of shining copper, after she had filled it with sanctified oil and had trimmed its wick. No lamp in all the room shone with a more blessed glow than that little primitive lamp in Jewry, thought the girl. And they had set a place at the table for the "Stranger" who might come.

Well, a stranger had come to the Baron and not come in vain . . .

After all, rich or poor, noble Russian or poor Jew, the kindness in the heart made customs and ideals the same thought Anna Mirrel. And she thanked the dear God that it was so, and that he had brought her to a great friend who would save her from the dishonor worse than death that had threatened her.

Anna Mirrel lifted a transfigured face of hope, and was glad she had not slipped into the cold black water of the river, but had come to this rich, warm home, where the Baron Andrey would be the means of her salvation.

AN INNOCENT

For, you see, Anna Mirrel was an innocent and trusting girl and men were men to her, not slimy creatures of the darkness.

"I didn't mind waiting at all, Your Excellency," she said, sweetly, like the little child she had managed to remain in spite of that Yellow Ticket. "I should never have thought of intruding here, but you said I should appear to you if I were molested and you would give me a card."

"Quite right! Quite right!" said the man.

"Your excellency is very kind."

The Baron chose to be playful now. He would seduce a mood of friendly gratitude and grateful friendliness. He was not in the habit of pounding upon his victim—rather he induced them to walk into the net prepared for them.

"Your Excellency! Your Excellency! Why so formal? Didn't I tell you this afternoon to look upon me as your friend?"

"Oh, yes! And I have—indeed I have!"

"Sit down, Anna Mirrel."

"I am so anxious to tell you"——

The Baron led her to the settee, and with most impersonal kindliness forced her gently into a sitting posture.

"Thank you," said Anna gratefully, but she was no intent on what had brought her here that she not primly upright on the settee, the couch and didn't allow the soft cushions to cradle her tired body so that it might be lulled to rest and even momentary feeling of security. Her mind was being driven by fear that would not allow her to relax until her danger was past. Only her mind was not capable of recognizing the danger that had scarcely begun.

"And you will take something—eh? A little refreshment?" asked the Baron, with pressing hospitality.

"Oh, nothing, thank you!"

"A little supper to cheer you up?"

"No, no, please!"

"Not hungry? Not even for some sweets? Oh, come; all little girls like sweets—and Anna Mirrel is a sweet little girl herself!"

Anna smiled wanly, and was so tired and so intent on her immediate problem that she did not sense any new danger. Her instincts did not warn her. Usage and education have accustomed us to trust to our minds and their intricate mental processes. We reason things out inquetively and get on very well for the most part—but we dull the instincts that should be feelers for danger like an insect's antennae. Then when sudden crisis comes we have not time to think out a mode of defence, and the instincts that would have given us warnings are asleep, when by playing their parts they might save us.

So Anna's instinctive—or "sentinel soul"—or whatever primitive sixth sense might have saved her were asleep now. Her mind did not notice the incongruity of the great Baron Andrey's calling her a sweet little girl, because her mind was intent on something else. And her instincts were too deeply buried to flash out, "Danger!"

"No, thank you! I can't eat. I'm too wretched! If you will only let me tell you"— She rose and started toward the Baron.

And he played the kind, elderly friend again.

"Forgive my stupidity! You are in distress! Who dared to molest you?"

"That man who came to the hotel today—he followed me to my room."

"He could not have come to you officially?"

"He said he had—no official business with me." Anna's shamed voice could hardly express it.

HIS LIES.

"Oh, well, of course you know I've no control over the actions of the men when off duty. Why didn't you order him out of the room?" asked the Baron with a touch of mock heroics.

"I did! He refused to go."

"My dear child, you should have sent for the police.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

"Ah! welcome, Anna Mirrel!"

CHAPTER V.

Like Father Like Daughter

LOUISE bent low over the pillow and looked anxiously at the white face of the injured man lying there. This was the first time he had been allowed to see anyone, and even now Louise was admitted only because she begged so hard for permission to look at him for only a moment. He looked very tired as he lay there asleep, and suddenly the pride of the girl melted and she leaned over him, her heart in her eyes. He was so helpless and she would just touch her lips to his forehead and slip away. He would never know. Softly she bent lower, her heart fluttering in her throat, and brushed her mouth against his hair. He did not stir and she lingered. Perhaps he was awake, and at the thought her cheeks burned guiltily. And as she waited, he turned his head on the pillow and their eyes met.

"Oh," she gasped, and she would have flown, but he caught her and drew her down to him.

"You kissed me," he whispered against her hair. "Now it's my turn, and remember sweetheart, I'm a sick man and must have my own way!" For a long time he held her there, and when he finally let her go, she had promised to marry him as soon as he was well enough.

THE STAIN AGAIN.

The day before Christmas Louise was commissioned by the office force to buy a gift for Norris, who was now almost well. They had decided on a clock, and once in the department store Louise would have made short work of her shopping if it had not been for a very beautiful bracelet that suddenly attracted her attention. She took it up to admire it more closely as she waited for her package, and as if in a dream she slipped the beautiful thing into her bag. It was entirely unconscious on her part, but the entire thing looked very different to a man who had watched her ever since she had stopped at the jewelry counter. A second later he had stepped up to her quietly and Louise Stevens was under arrest for attempted theft. In an incredibly short time Louise was forced to give her name and Norris was sent for. The detective had communicated with Dunn too, having been hired by the boss to set anything on Norris that might possibly help in the campaign, and Dunn was exultant as he telephoned Harding.

"We've got the goods on Louise Gray, she's Norris' secretary," were his last words, and as Harding rang off there was a look of unholy joy on his face.

Norris arrived on the scene, but Louise was almost hysterical and could do nothing but cry she was reduced to such a state of nervousness. He immediately offered cash bail and was refused, Harding having already prepared to take a hand, but as Norris insisted, and as there was really no reason that anyone could offer they were finally asked to report at the judge's home, where Norris and the assistant district attorney agreed on the bail. Norris had made himself responsible for Louise and as he intended to defend her at the trial he decided that it would be best to marry her immediately.

In working up the case Norris later discovered that Louise did not know her real father and mother. Grey was the name that had been given her at he asylum and she had always been known by the name. More she did not know. For a time Norris was frantic, for his time was short and the defence was scant in available material. As luck would have it, however, Louise, who had written to the asylum for information, finally received a letter from the Mother Superior. She was passing through the city and had planned on stopping off to see the girl. Norris could hardly wait to see her.

"Your name is Stevens," said the mother later, after Norris had told her the story and the fact that it would be necessary to know more about Louise's parentage.

GOOD NEWS

"Stevens" said the man thoughtfully. Let me think a moment. Yes, that was the name of the woman who had asked me to help her find her daughter. She refused to tell me her name, however, and said her father was a thief. This puts a different aspect on things. Louise, I believe I have found your mother."

Half an hour later Louise was in her mother's arms and Norris had an invaluable witness for his case. On the day of the trial all was excitement. Norris had worked up a splendid case, pleading heredity for his client, and the fact that Louise was his wife made things all the more exciting.

During the recess Louise's mother was admitted to the courtroom, Norris having kept her till the last on purpose. Harding and Dunn met outside during the same time. Dunn was visibly put out, and both men were very quiet.

"You've got to get her in order to crush Norris," said Dunn finally, "if you don't, goodby to your chances for governorship." Harding said nothing, but his mind was made up. The girl must be proved guilty!

As the court came to order for the resuming of the trial Norris called Mrs. Stevens. As yet the woman had not seen the judge in a clear light, and now as she raised her eyes to his she stopped in what she was about to say and stared at him wildly. Then she pointed a finger at the man, and turning to the jury, she said in a vibrant voice, every tone of which could be heard across the courtroom:

"Gentlemen of the jury, there is Stevens, the bank thief—MY husband, and HER father!"

There was wild excitement in the room at the words, and as the judge dropped into a seat with his head in his hands the jury filed slowly out. There was no need of prolonging the trial after such a disclosure and there was no doubt in the minds of any one as to the final verdict.

Standing between her mother and her husband Louise Stevens was pronounced not guilty, and as the cheers of the delighted crowd echoed around her she passed out of the room forever, to the opening of a new life, leaving behind her a father who had staked his all on one throw which had ultimately failed.

Do You Know That

Mme. Henriette Teyssedre, who had died at the age of eighty at her residence in the Rue de la Grange-aux-Belles, Paris, will be buried in the coffin in which for the last thirty years she has slept nightly. When three decades ago her husband died, Mme. Teyssedre ordered a coffin of polished oak with silver corner pieces, silk and velvet lining, and with images of saints painted on its sides. Her servant found her dead in it.

The gold watch which King Edward presented to his jockey, Herbert Jones, in celebration of his winning the Derby, had on the back a striped stocking worked in enamel. Jones, it appears, always wore a striped stocking as a mascot, and King Edward, knowing this, gave special instructions for the presentation watch to bear the design in question.

BUSINESS DRIFTING, BUT REVIVAL SHOULD BE NEAR, SAYS FORBES

By B. C. FORBES,
Business Editor.

Business is drifting.

Washington monopolizes attention.

But a distinct change, for the better, ought to be at hand.

Let the Interstate Commerce Commission hand down, as it is expected to do a reasonably favorable rate decision, and I believe the whole country will wake up.

* * *

Politics are exercising less concern in the highest financial circles, not because of any voluntary change of heart by the administration, but because of growing confidence that President Wilson has so overstepped the mark in attacking business and berating responsible business men that Congress will refuse to respond to the crack of his whip and rush through more anti-business laws at this session, and because of a conviction that the Fall elections will deliver a strong rebuke to those who have advocated rapid corporation-baiting, with all its resultant depression and unemployment.

* * *

Ex-President Roosevelt's declaration to the Hearst correspondent in London that he will flay the administration for its mishandling of business problems, is regarded as having an important bearing upon coming political developments.

* * *

Of even greater moment, however, is the manifest sobering of public opinion concerning our business organizations as a whole, a circumstance that is reflected by the cautionary attitude now being adopted by House Leader Oscar Underwood and other statesmen who keep in close touch with the people and are not guided solely by schoolroom theories.

* * *

My humble view is that if the momentous rate decision proves even moderately helpful, other things will work out satisfactorily (Mexico I leave entirely out of reckoning).

* * *

America, you will have read, has "lost" $70,000,000 of gold to Europe since January 1, and the continuance of the overflow is described as being in itself a very grave matter. Now more flub-dub is written and spoken about gold shipments than any other financial subject.

The principal reason Europe has taken gold is that she can use the money AND WE CAN'T.

* * *

The largest national bank in America is at this moment carrying more than 35 per cent. reserve in its vaults, although the law calls for only 25 per cent. That is a striking fact.

* * *

Money for strictly commercial and stock market purposes is going a-begging in the United States, because there is no legitimate, thoroughly safe demand for it, owing to nationwide stagnation.

* * *

President Wilson's pet advisers may gull him with all the fancy, ear-tickling tales they like to conjure up about increasing prosperity and humming industry, but the cold truth is that business is NOT booming, but the polar reverse. The state of the money market alone, were there no supplementary evidences of a more painful nature, would serve to prove that.

* * *

But the $70,000,000 gold is not "lost." Its exportation was not incited wholly or even largely by the very recent expansion in merchandise imports and shrinkage in exports. The causes are older and lie deeper than that.

They have to do with very extensive liquidation of American securities by European holders during the last two years, with the maturing and paying off of American notes and bonds held abroad, with the almost universal scramble for gold by the leading European countries, most of all with THE DECAY OF ENTERPRISE, INDUSTRY, TRADE AND SPECULATION IN THE UNITED STATES.

* * *

The whole international gold movement mind, is about to undergo a gradual but extraordinary transformation. Before it is over I believe with John E. Gardin, the foreign exchange authority, that we shall bring back from Europe more than the $70,000,000 we have shipped. For these reasons:

1—Exportation of wheat has already begun, and the prospects are that we will send abroad approximately one-third of our annual total crop, or say 300,000,000 bushels, worth in round figures, $300,000,000.

2—The value of this year's cotton exports promises to exceed all previous records—$500,000,000 to $600,000,000.

3—The importing season is about over, and the balance of exports for the second half of the year should approach $200,000,000.

* * *

These three things foot up to $1,000,000,000—a thousand million dollars. That is a sizable bill for foreigners to settle.

* * *

Unless all signs fail, they cannot do it without remitting more gold than we have sent them—that is to say if we care to take the gold. If we need it we can demand it.

And I, for one, am hopeful that the second half of 1914 will be less disastrous to business, to investments and to workers than the first half and also last year have proved.

* * *

The Stock Exchange is almost deserted. Dealings in stocks have fallen to the lowest ebb in many years. Price cutting is reported in both the steel and copper industries, without so far attracting an inrush of orders.

* * *

Building is in the doldrums. Merchandise of a luxurious kind is not moving—the diamond trade, for example, is in a lamentable condition, while furniture is unusually dull; the weather is against footwear, and men are not buying suits with old-time freedom.

* * *

Commercial failures last week were deplorably numerous, both here and in Canada—150 per cent. above a year ago in the latter country.

The lumber trade, which draws one-third of its customers from the railroads, has fallen off.

And the tariff reductions have not yet by any means spent their force in several directions. The May foreign trade returns showing $30,000,000 increase in imports and an even greater decrease in exports are in view of the similar tendency during previous months calculated to raise questions about the merits of the new tariff. This is in fact one phase of the situation that will bear watching, although dogmatic conclusions are to be avoided at this early stage.

* * *

In spite of these rather doleful facts, however, the foundations on the whole are sound—there is something not unlike a derth of supplies of finished merchandise all over the country, the depression has stimulated economic habits, money is abundant and the new currency system will shortly be in force, securities are on a low level and not speculatively held, the Panama Canal opening should act as a tonic to American trade, frenzied attacks upon business are no longer in favor; Congress must adjourn sooner or later, and the Fall elections are expected to show a general desire for constructive instead of unsettling, crippling, destructive legislation.

* * *

Unless the Interstate Commerce Commission does its worst to wound it, hopefulness would appear to be justified in surveying prospects for business, for securities and labor in the second half of the current year.

Another Chicago Bank Closes Doors

CHICAGO, June 22.—The Fernwood Trust & Savings Bank, a South Side suburban institution, owned by C. J. Holland, formerly a real estate dealer, failed to open its doors today, and five trustees, comprising the largest creditors of the bank, were placed in charge of the business. Big withdrawals of deposits following the closing or suspension of numerous other banks and the fact that much of the bank's funds are invested in real estate mortgages, upon which it was impossible to realize quickly, was given as the reason for the closing.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were lower as well as dull this afternoon, a reaction at midday succeeding morning steadiness. Early in the afternoon in New York declines included Rock Island common ¼, preferred ⅜, Canadian Pacific ⅜, Southern Pacific ⅛, Missouri Pacific ¼, Reading ½, New Haven ⅝, American Telephone ⅛, American Can ⅛, Steel ½, Amalgamated ⅝, Northern Pacific ⅛, Union Pacific ½ and Western Union 1⅞. Lehigh Valley was up ⅜ and Utah Copper ⅜ at 58⅝, it having touched 59⅜.

Boston & Maine sold down to 34 in the local market, but by afternoon had recovered to 34½, then being off ½. New Haven was down ¾, and among other declines were Elevated ½, American Telephone ⅛, Butte & Superior ⅝, North Butte ⅛ and Shoe ¼. United Fruit was unchanged, as were Calumet & Arizona and Granby.

TRADING CONTINUED DULL.

There was no alteration in markets over Sunday; they re-opened very quiet and irregular. The change in prices at the beginning today was trivial and there was no range of consequence to fluctuations during the morning. Many prominent issues were entirely neglected. In fact traders continued to await a decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission on Eastern freight rates. Word came from Washington early that it would not be rendered today. Uncertainty as to the time is greater than ever. In railroad circles there is less hope that allowances will be of much effect in increasing revenues. Much stress is laid upon the steadiness of stocks in so dull a period. The bull argument is that if there was any movement it would be upward. Rock Island bonds were lower, 4s, selling at 25¾, their low record price, and common stock sold as low as 1¾, while the preferred issue touched 3.

MARKETS LACKED FEATURES.

All markets lacked interesting features and how dull they were may be judged from the fact that first hour transactions in New York were under 29,000 shares. The undertone there was firm during the morning, but there was a recessional movement during the noon hour. Most American issues were lower in the afternoon in London, where business in general was confined to evening up commitments. The new account in that market begins on Wednesday. The Boston market was never more quiet. The tone was fairly firm locally, however. There was very little business in coppers. The metal market is flat. The London agency of one of the largest producers offered electrolytic this afternoon at 13.80 cents a pound. This indicates how much the demand for metal has slackened in Europe. Gold bars to the amount of $1,500,000 are to be shipped from New York to Paris on tomorrow's steamship.

WASHINGTON NEWS BEARISH.

News from Washington is still the big bear factor, just as crop prospects are the chief bullish influence. It was announced from the capital that the Federal Trade Commission bill was to be put on the Senate calenday today as unfinished business, although it cannot be taken up for several days, or until more progress is made upon appropriation measures, just to notify obstreperous Congressmen that adjournment will not be sanctioned by President Wilson until all the administration measures affecting business are passed. This was in line with expectation. It had no effect upon stock markets, but it deepened gloom. It is believed that as long as Congress is in session proceedings at Washington will be restrictive upon both speculation and trade in general. It is understood that the President thinks if Congressmen wish to get home to attend to personal campaign matters their best course is to pass the anti-trust bills as quickly as possible.

FOREIGN MONEY OUTLOOK.

Since Europe obtained more than $50,000,000 in gold in New York money markets abroad have become easier, especially in Paris and Berlin. While tension has also relaxed in London, there is fear pressure may be resumed there later. The Berlin financial correspondent for Hearst newspapers cables:

"Looking farther ahead, however, financial authorities fear pressure on London will be all the greater when New York will be able to draw gold from Europe and because the Bank of France, once it gets American gold, will refuse to let it go.

"The brunt of America's Autumn demands, therefore, when cotton and grain shipments are changed for the international payment balances must fall on London."

EASTERN FREIGHT CASE.

Railroads are still awaiting a decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission upon their request for permission to put into effect new tariff schedules advancing rates in that part of the country lying east of the Mississippi and north of the Potomac Rivers. They filed the tariffs they want approved as long ago as October 15, 1913. The tariffs did not provide for a flat increase of 5 per cent. Some increases asked for were as low as 3 per cent., others in excess of 5 per cent. The average was around the latter figure. Forty-nine systems are affected. It is estimated that if the asked-for advances are granted the roads concerned would increase their revenues in the aggregate about $50,000,000 a year. The total of their revenues for the last fiscal year before they asked for the increase was around $1,000,000,000. The New Haven and the Boston & Maine are among the roads which would benefit by a favorable decision.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants market was easier this morning and by noon spot and futures were each off 6s. 3d. There was no further change at the close.

It is stated by President Lang of the Heywood Brothers and Wakefield Co. that he is considering twelve offers to locate the plant in the West.

The Boston bank statement shows that surplus reserve decreased $56,143.

Ahmeek directors have declared a quarterly dividend of $2. A year ago $7 was declared.

Directors of the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Company have declared regular quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent. (75 cents) and 1¾ per cent. (87½ cents) on the common and preferred shares, respectively, both payable July 15 to stock of record June 30.

The regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share has been declared upon Shattuck-Arizona stock.

B. & M. EXPRESS CONTRACT IS BEFORE COURT

CONCORD, N. H., June 22.—The Boston & Maine Railroad, through its counsel, James F. Jackson, of Boston, today filed suit against the American Express Company, and asked the courts to annul the notorious contracts the railroads made with the company in 1904 and in 1907.

At the same time Attorney Jackson filed the railroad's answer to the suit brought against the road by Mrs. Clementine B. Wentworth, who charged fraud in the making of the contracts. The charges of Mrs. Wentworth, who is a stockholder in the road, are declared to be true by the Boston & Maine in its answer.

In her suit Mrs. Wentworth petitioned for the abrogation of the express company contracts and alleged that the contracts were forced on the railroad by the express company by use of the dominating influence of express company officials who sat on the board of directors, and that the contract was unjust to the railroad itself and a fraud on its stockholders.

COST R. R. $700,000 A YEAR.

The contract between the Boston & Maine road and the American Express Company is in force for a period of twenty years. It provides that the railroad shall receive 35 per cent. of the gross receipts of the express company. Mrs. Wentworth's lawyer contends that the operation of this contract has cost the railroad at least $700,000 a year.

As the case now stands the stockholders and directors of the Boston & Maine road are now fighting the express company.

Boston Merchant's Auto Fatally Hurts New Bedford Man

Clarence Maftera of New Bedford was run over in Middleboro early today by an auto driven by E. J. Brown of Clyde street, Brookline, a Boston leather merchant. Maftera, a driver for C. H. Shaw of Middleboro, stepped from his milk wagon into the street just as Mr. Brown was passing in his auto. The machine struck the man, two wheels passing over his head and crushing the skull.

Mr. Brown jumped from his machine and placed the injured man in the automobile to rush him to the hospital, but as he was about to take the wheel he collapsed.

Dr. H. V. Smith, who had been summoned, took Maftera into his machine to the Brockton Hospital, where it was said the man could not live. Mr. Brown was on his way to Boston from his Summer home at Cotuit.

Limit Kiss Films to a Single Yard

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—Mrs. Cyrus Niver, the only woman member of the new State Moving-Picture Censorship Board, has come to the conclusion that one yard of film is long enough for any kiss. She has sat through yards and yards of kisses of every variety, and her ultimatum, after watching an embrace which occupied five yards of film, was that four yards should be eliminated.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JUNE 22, 1914.

Shall Justice Be Known by the Company She Keeps?

The people of Boston have a right to be proud of and to preserve the beauty of their parks.

And because no little of that beauty is due to flowering plants and shrubs, and because, without a doubt, the blossoms would quickly disappear if the public were permitted to pluck them freely, it is right that rules and regulations should be made for their preservation.

And it must further be conceded that rules cannot be adequately enforced unless there is some penalty for their infraction.

BUT there is reason in all things, and it does not follow that an act is criminal because it is forbidden.

The public has not yet stopped talking with indignation of the case of Mrs. Florence Bresnahan, the young Dorchester woman who with two children was carted in a patrol wagon to a police station, herded with criminals, and taken to Court and fined FOR THE ATROCIOUS OFFENCE OF BEING FOUND WITH A FLOWER IN HER HAND WHILE IN ONE OF OUR PUBLIC PARKS. She was humiliated, her family disgraced by that modern public pillory, the patrol wagon, because someone suspected her of having broken a shrubbery stem among the billions of stems in our parks.

An automobile speed maniac drives down the public highway teeming with humanity, reckless of the danger to life and limb from his deliberate violation of the law. Is he arrested and paraded through the streets in a patrol wagon and herded among criminals and publicly fined and given a criminal record, which will be a stain upon him through life?

Not for a moment. He is politely notified by the police that he is accused of violating the law, and that the judge on a certain day will hear what he has to say about it. He goes to Court if he pleases or he sends his lawyer if he prefers. He usually sends his lawyer, He is too busy and he does not like to stand in the dock with other criminals.

His lawyer enters what lawyers call the plea of nolo, which means in plain English that the speed maniac does not wish to argue the matter and does not want a criminal record. The judge imposes a trifling fine, which the lawyer pays, and no criminal record is made against the man, who has deliberately taken chances with human life. He has not been inconvenienced. He has not been disgraced.

This is the difference between the administration of the law concerning men who jeopardize our lives and concerning a woman who obeyed the instinct wisely implanted by nature in the best of us to love pretty things.

This woman denies that she disobeyed the regulations of the park, but whether she did or did not, she did nothing deserving such public disgrace and humiliation, and the COURT which fined her and the OFFICERS who pilloried her in a patrol wagon LACKED SOMETHING in human nature, the want of which UNFITS them for their duties.

Pity the Poor Cats, Locked Out

Pity Also the Poor Editors Whose Sympathy Goes No Higher Than Cats.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

At this time in many newspapers you will read pitiful appeals, "Remember the Cat." Prosperous ladies and gentlemen moving from the city to the country are implored to bear in mind the fact that their comfortable home is some CAT'S comfortable home.

They are reminded that when the front door is locked, and the basement door locked, and the back door to the kitchen locked, and the windows fastened down, poor pussy is out in the cold world and compelled to become a back-fencer.

"No regular milk for poor pussy, no calm purring on a soft cushion when you are gone," say the tearful cat editors.

And they beg the prosperous to provide for the cat—although usually they do not say just how that is to be done.

If you try to take the cat away with you to the country in your automobile she will jump out and return to your locked house anyway.

If you leave her in town she will have to get along somehow with the other back-yard cats, and will probably meet you in the Fall with a pleased expression and a new large family.

We do not criticise kindness to cats; on the contrary we preach it—also kindness to all dumb things.

We observe, however, that this annual appeal for the cat crowded out of her Back Bay home is usually made by newspapers that never under any circumstances interest themselves in human beings that the rich leave behind them in the big cities.

When Croesus moves to Newport and forgets Kitty, that is sad, indeed.

What about those that work for Croesus and bring in his dividends?

What about the tens of thousands of children left in the slums and narrow back streets that grow hotter and dirtier every day?

Croesus, at least, when he moves to the country does not increase the price of mice or rats.

But he does increase the price of ice and of other things necessary to the lives of the creatures that are not cats.

How pleasant it would be if the poor, tame tabby editors, with their annual appeal for poor Kitty, would add to it a semi-annual appeal for children, women, the millions of worried and oppressed, whose anxieties grow year by year, and are most acute in the dangerous hot Summer of the city.

It is, perhaps, too much to expect that poor Kitty's editorial friend should go higher in the scale of vertebrates and take an interest in his own kind.

But he might do this:

He might explain to his prosperous cat-owning friends that the best thing to do before the front door is closed for the Summer is to catch Kitty, chloroform her and end her career as a conveyance for diphtheretic and other germs, and as a disturber of sick children and others trying to sleep.

Kindness to animals is a virtue, and the greatest kindness is painless destruction of the superfluous beasts out of place in civilization, a danger to human beings and a curse to themselves.

THREE MEN IN A BOAT - To SAY NOTHING OF THE DOVE

The Men Who Made America

John Cabot—This Explorer's Two Months' Trip Out of England Was Decreed by Destiny to Make America English, and to Open the Way to Our Present Civilization

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

ACCORDING to the very sensible rule, that you must catch your rabbit before you can cook it, it seems but fair that telling the story of the MEN WHO MADE AMERICA the first place should be given to the man who discovered America and took out the patent on it.

As John Fiske has said it would be ridiculous to compare Cabot's achievement with that of Columbus, who showed the way across the "Sea of Darkness," but at the same time it is well to remember that it was Cabot who, since the days of the Vikings, first set foot upon the Continent of North America.

It was June 24, 1497—four hundred and seventeen years ago—that John Cabot was granted the first glimpse that a white man had ever had of the shores of Continental America.

It was about 5 o'clock in the morning, and there before the great captain's gaze lay the rocky coast of Labrador, its stunted fire and moss-covered boulders, touched into gold by the sun god's smile.

The commander upon landing planted a banner and took possession of the region in the name of the English sovereign, under whose authority he had made the discovery, after which he returned to England, where he was received with high honors, dressed in silk and given the title of the "Great Admiral."

Cabot made his memorable voyage in a single vessel named the "Mathew," with a crew of but eighteen men. It was a quick trip. Setting out from Bristol early in May, he made the great discovery and was back again in Bristol by the end of July, having made the round trip in something less than two months.

The following year (1498) Sebastian Cabot, John's son, set sail from Bristol in six ships, discovered Newfoundland, sailed along the coast for a long distance, probably as far south as the present city of Charleston, S. C., and, having taken possession of it all in the name of the King of England, returned to the Old World, married a rich Spanish woman and settled down for the solid enjoyment of his fame and fortune. After his marriage we hear but little more of him. He seems to have dropped at once into "innocuous desuetude" and almost total eclipse.

John Cabot, the first white man since Lief Ericson to set eye or foot upon the North American Continent, was born, like Columbus, in Genoa, Italy. We know but little of him, but that little is quite complimentary to him.

He seems to have been scrupulously truthful. Upon his return from the discovery of the bleak and inhospitable Labradorian coast, for example, he absolutely refused to go into the Arabian Nights or Munchausen business.

He did not "ascend Mount McKinley" or "discover the North Pole"; he saw no "Indian Kings" or other strange and wonderful human beings; he ran up against no mines of gold or gems, or groves of "precious aromatic woods." He saw "little but rocks and a few dwarf trees and shrubs."

But in spite of his rock-ribbed integrity of statement, the commander came very near getting himself into the Bristol "Ananias Club." He told them how his vessel had literally "ploughed its way through shoals of codfish" off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, and the story came pretty near being his finish. One of the scribes of the day informs us that "Master John, being poor and a foreigner, would have been set down as a liar had not his crew, who were mostly Bristol men, confirmed everything he said about the codfish."

The political significance of Cabot's discovery will appear at a glance.

Remember, first of all, that Cabot was the first to discover and set foot upon the mainland of America, and bear in mind, in the second place, that, having discovered and landed upon the mainland, he took possession of it in the name of England.

From that immense vantage-ground, given her by Cabot, England never for a moment receded. Against all comers—Spaniard, Portuguese, French and every other breed of men—the English fought "tooth and nail" for the rights which came to them through the "Great Admiral." America became English, that is to say, was decreed by destiny to become the home of the civilization that rests on the principles of Freedom and Progress, Intelligence and Manhood, rather than upon the "Paternalism" which ends on the one side in high-handed tyranny and on the other in intellectual dry-rot and moral turpitude.

The man whose discovery effectuated this deserves to stand first among the Makers of America.

The Paralysis of the Payroll

By ELBERT HUBBARD

THERE is a disease known to doctors as "Intestinal Stasis." The symptom is a cessation of peristaltic action, with a static condition of the alimentary canal instead of a natural activity. If not relieved, danger and death are at the door.

This country about now is suffering from industrial stasis, or Paralysis of the Payroll.

The cause of the paralysis is the continued irritation of business by the government, thus destroying natural circulation and normal activity.

One-fifth of our wage-earners are not drawing wages, because they are not at work.

When you attack them who maintain payrolls, you hit the wage earner, kick his wife and cuff his children.

Laws coercing railroads, and the withholding of a small necessary advance in rates, have been followed by a cancellation of orders for steel.

* * *

To kill the courage of a builder is to destroy in degree a payroll. To destroy a payroll is to strike employers, employes, storekeepers, manufacturers, and make women and children go ragged and hungry.

The chief implement of business destruction in this country has been the Sherman act. It has been used as a club to beat payrolls into insensibility.

The present industrial conditions in America arise out of the fact that the attitude of our government is hostile to business.

Big business has come through natural evolution; it having been ascertained that men can work together in an organization much more economically than they can work alone.

Competition pushed beyond a certain point becomes suicidal. To sell consumers goods at less than these goods cost leads to a receivership, and the buying capacity of the consumer will suffer accordingly.

The most desirable thing is not a lower cost of living, but an increased ability of the consumer to buy.

High and low are merely comparative terms. If beefsteak is thirty cents a pound and I have a dollar in my pocket I can buy beefsteak all right; but if beefsteak is five cents a pound and I haven't the five cents I will be a vegetarian.

Business genius is exactly like art genius. We do business on enthusiasm, on hope, on good cheer, on courage, and the best of men have only a small amount of these needful mental qualities, and the plodders have none at all. For the past ten years, and especially for the past six years, business has been under the official ban of Washington.

* * *

Investors should be allowed to expand along natural lines. Supervision is necessary, but it must be supervision by sympathetic, able economists, by humanitarians.

Physically, there is nothing the matter with this country. We have every element for prosperity, save peace and confidence. And these the government must give us, or there will be many new faces in the bread line, as Mr. Dooley truthfully avers.

The first requisite in civilization is that the people shall be profitably employed. Government should co-operate with employers of labor. And until this occurs the payroll is going to suffer more and more, until want, woe and misery walk the streets, and red revolution shuffles in where once industry, peace and plenty smiled.

The ruin that the Roman Emperor Diocletian wrought by his edicts in control of trade are being repeated here through laws passed by politicians.

* * *

The fact is, big business always and forever does three things: It betters the product, it increases wages, it stimulates consumption.

By supplying profitable and steady employment it gives buying powers to the wage earner, and everybody thereby thrives.

Business men who succeed nowadays tell the truth and walk the moral chalk-line. Booze, "damaged goods," late hours, tyrannical methods and indifference to the welfare of employes and public spell quick bankruptcy.

The modern business man is a public servant. And the bigger the business, the more the health, happiness and prosperity of the workers are considered.

To destroy animation, hope and courage is easy. But to build, create and transport things only come about through able and patient leadership—not through political palaver.

AFTER THE WEDDING

AN ILLUSTRATED STORY OF THE WAY A HOME WAS MADE

"I'd trade it all for your place right now."

The day that Jennie went to call on the wealthy woman friend of the acquaintances who lived in the same apartment house with Jennie the lady asked her to be sure and come to see her again. This Jennie did one afternoon. The lady asked Jennie all about herself and Tom and about their little home, and as they talked, in the woman's sumptuously furnished apartment, Jennie didn't notice the wistful look that came into her eyes when Jennie mentioned their poor little apartment and how hard Tom was working and saving trying to make it comfortable for them.

"I do wish," said Jennie, "that some day we'll have a home like yours, with everything you want, lovely furniture, money, go to all the theatres, to Europe or do anything you choose. Oh, my! it must be just grand."

"You dear little girl," said the woman, "I'd trade it all for your place right now. You see all these things that are called beautiful in these rooms, pictures, rugs, furniture, servants, everything? I'd give it ALL to be YOU—you who have EVERYTHING and I have NOTHING. You, with a simple little home, with everything before you and the fun of living and the trying to make it better. I have everything with nothing to strive for. You have a husband that loves you and who enjoys working to make your little home happy, while mine, if he came home oftener than once a week, would be bored to death."

Little Jennie looked at her in amazement, for little Jennie did not understand.

An Englishman's Letters

From J. Percy Smith-Brown, Esquire, Hotel Pazazza, Boston, to H. Therington Bellingham-Cholmondly (pronounced Chumly) The Towers, Choriton-cum-Hardy, Cirencester, near Stoke-Pennington the Lesser, Hants, England.

DEAR OLD TOP—Extraordinary lot of bounders they have over here, old chap; most extraordinary, 'pon my honour.

There is no such thing as a bally sportsman in the bally country; they're all a lot of blooming professionals. They have some blasted polo players here, but they don't play the game like gentlemen at all, old man. Instead the beggars are out "hustling" to win! Fact, 'pon my word. Not a bit like jolly old Wimborne's team, eh? Our men jolly well run over to Madrid and have a good time with Alfonso. Who cares about polo when full of the wine of the country?

I have seen a lot in the wretched papers over here about some bally rot they call mediation. It appears that these blooming mediators come from Argentine, Brazil and Chile, and for some reason or other the newspaper blighters always refer to them as the "A-B-C" mediators. Dashed if I can see why, but then no fellow can understand the ways of this extraordinary country. Fancy, old fellow, if the rotters are talking about a bloke who got hit on the nose they say the guy got a wallop on the beezer, instead of saying he got a bash on the boko. Deuced weird, what?

However, old man, I wanted to tell you about a ripping American jest I made about these blooming mediators. They are staying at a place called Niagara Falls—you must jolly well remember this to get the point of the joke, old chap. I met that Yankee friend of mine, Vincent Breezer, and I said, "I say, old top, these blasted mediators are a bunch of fall flyers." After remember where I told you they were staying?]

"My word, old cock," said Breezer, "you're a regular wag, aren't you? A jolly, blooming, blasted good wheeze for a blooming, blasted H'Englishman. You'll bally well send it to dear old Punch, won't you, old top?" Rather flattering, eh, even if coming from a mere American. But then I never can tell whether this Breezer person is spoofing or not. Now in dear old England you never can miss knowing when a chap's jolly well chaffing; he doesn't do it in the dashed underhand way they have over here. The boundless absolutely lack our bluff, honest humour.

"You ought to run up and see Niagara Falls," said Breezer, "it is a wonderful sight."

"My dear fellow," said I, "you really don't think I'd bally well move a step to see a lot of beastly water falling over a bally cliff and that sort of rot. I much prefer to sit in some dashed cosy little tap room where one can bally well tumbling into the pewter. You can't drink water, you know, and in large quantities, such as the Atlantic or the confounded Hudson; the wretched stuff bores me fearfully.

And by the by, old chap, ever here they say "can" when they mean "tin." They have some story about a farmer who said "We tin what we can tin, and what we can't tin, we don't tin." I never could see any bally humour in it, although Breezer says it's a regular cartoon of a story.

Your old pal, PERCY.

P.S.—Was Jesse Jones,
